GLENDALE TO ENTERTAIN VISITORS

Club Women Attending Big Convention Stop Here On All-Day Trip

Glendale has extended the hospitality of the city to the thousands of clubwomen attending the biennial convention in Los Angeles, for the play day tomorrow.

All business of the convention will be suspended tomorrow and the clubwomen will see California, at least as much of the golden state as is in proximity to Los Angeles.

To Visit Here

Among the places to be visited will be the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse in Glendale, where the local clubwomen will hold open house from 2:30 till 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Members of the board of directors will receive and punch will be served by the hospitality committee. Mrs. Daniel Campbell, retiring president, and Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, president-elect of the club, will head the receiving line. Mrs. Homer D. Lockwood and her hospitality committee will serve.

Other places to be visited by the clubwomen will be Culver City and Hollywood, where the motion picture studios will throw open their doors. The sightseeing trips will also include San Fernando valley, Pasadena, Redlands, Santa Monica, Sawtelle, Orange county, Anaheim, Fullerton, La Habra, Garden Grove, Laguna Beach, San Juan Capistrano, Long Beach, Mt. Lowe, Mt. Wilson and Catalina.

Twelve excursions are to be given at night for the clubwomen. Features of the day will be twelve all-day excursions and one

AIRMAN REJOINS FLIGHT COMRADES

Lieut. Smith Reaches China After Delay Caused by Defect in Motor

SHANGHAI, June 5.—The third United States army around-the-world flyer, Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, arrived here this afternoon from Kagoshima, Japan. Lieutenant Smith and his two companions plan to resume their globe-circling journey Saturday. Smith was delayed 24 hours in leaving Kagoshima by a slight motor defect.

It was just a few minutes after noon when a crowd of watchers, including Lieutenant Leigh Wade and Lieutenant Erick Nelson, the other two American long distance flyers, saw a speck high in the sky driving down from the northeast. It was Smith's plane. Smith circled slowly then dropped to the landing place in the Yangtze river.

Pastor Slain by Son of Dying Man, Nabbed

DRAUGHT, Mass., June 5.—Rev. Michael C. Gilbridge, pastor of a Collinsville church, was shot to death here today in the doorway of the home of John King, where he had gone to administer the last rites of the church to King's aged father.

Young King, who is described as an atheist, was arrested after a furious gun battle with the police, in which he severely wounded Police Captain David Pietro, of the Lowell police department.

Weather Foils D'Oisy In Dash for Japan

NAGASAKI, Japan, June 5.—Lieutenant Pelletier D'Oisy, French long distance aviator, who was forced to turn back by stormy weather yesterday after departing from Taikou, Korea, for the Japanese mainland, made a second attempt today. He started across the Korea strait, but was again compelled to return, this time by fog.

Bold Bandit Lifts Roll From Police Judge In Hold-up

LOS ANGELES, June 5.—The ONE great crime has been committed.

Some BOLD bandit last night essayed to hold up Police Commissioner I. W. Birnbaum when the latter drove Police Judge Hugh Crawford home in his closed car.

The commissioner expostulated with the "stick up" man as he relieved the judge of his wallet containing an amount to exceed $10.

But Mr. Birnbaum, who is an investment broker, had SOMETHING to argue about. He had $160 in his wallet. As he drew it out of his coat pocket, he also flashed his police shield.

"See my STAR," he said. "I am the commissioner of police courts."

Evidently the bandit had seen that face somewhere before. He left Birnbaum holding his wallet, but made away with the judge's money.

DEFENDS BILL ON IMMIGRATION

Women of America Must Protect Home Against Aliens, Says Speaker

LOS ANGELES, June 5.—Immigration laws which protect American women and American homes were hotly defended here today by Mrs. Edward Franklin White of Indianapolis in the feature address of the day before the seventeenth biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's clubs.

"Women's place is the home and therefore she must see to it that her home is protected from the invasion of alien races lower in mentality and morality than her own native stock," asserted Mrs. White, chairman of the legislation department.

To Protect Homes "Woman is going to see to it that the influences touching the lives of her children at school, at play and in business shall not be reddened with sin and ignorance."

"There is no justification for an alien race in this country of longer than five years' residence. There is no justification for hyphenated Americans—for Japanese farmers, Italian newspapers, a Greek vote, German-American banks, Irish-American clubs or any other agency whereby the segregation of aliens is encouraged."

American women need and must fight for world peace, prohibition enforcement and a uniform marriage and divorce law. Mrs. White declared, to keep their homes safe and clean.

Property Owners Ask Annexation Election

A petition signed by property owners north of the Sparr Heights tract was filed with the City Council this morning asking that a district, the exact extent of which has not yet been determined by the city engineer, be annexed to the city of Glendale, and requesting the council to call an election for the purpose of submitting this proposition to the voters.

On motion of Councilman Ass. Hall, the petition was filed and the city clerk instructed to communicate to the county authorities that such a move was being undertaken.

Thirty-five Hundred Guests at Luncheon

LOS ANGELES, June 5.—The largest luncheon on record is being eaten this afternoon in Los Angeles at the Hotel Biltmore. Covers for 3500, principally club groups, were laid in every available room of the new hostelry.

Deny Support Given By Portuguese Troops

LONDON, June 5.—It is officially denied that Portuguese troops are supporting the mutinous air service officers, said a dispatch from Lisbon today.

TELLS NEED TO FOSTER INDUSTRY

Financial Aid for Business Projects in Southland, Corporation Plan

During the course of the "Keep the white spot white" meeting at the Harvard High school last night several workers from Los Angeles "scolded" Glendale for not responding more liberally to memberships in the association. The tactics employed by some of the workers from Los Angeles approached verbal violence.

The Glendale Evening News, while it favors and supports the aims of the association, does NOT endorse the "strong-arm" methods of some of the workers. The tactics used last night hurt the cause. This newspaper is opposed to such methods.

The citizens of Glendale are patriotic; they are strong for the Southland; they are behind every betterment movement. They have subscribed liberally to the Greater Los Angeles association. They will continue to subscribe. But they will not be FORCED to do so.

Calling on all who have put their eggs in the southern California investment basket to unite now in putting their shoulders to the wheel, that the great machine of industry may move, President Harry H. Merrick of the Greater Los Angeles association last night showed clearly why Glendale must help to "Keep the White Spot White," at a mass meeting held in the Harvard High school auditorium, Chairman Charles B. Guthrie of the local chapter presiding.

IDENTIFY VICTIM OF WERDIN'S GUN

Loyola College Student Dies In Attempted Hold-up Of Hollywood Home

LOS ANGELES, June 5.—At the height of a gay Hollywood party in the home of Fred Harlow, cafe owner, Ernest R. Werdin, former sheriff and widely known contractor of Los Angeles, early today shot and killed Franklin John Morrison, "college boy" bandit. Morrison was identified as a son of F. C. Morrison, realtor. He was a student at Loyola college here.

J. D. Hunter of the district attorney's office, Perry Thomas, assistant city attorney, and other prominent men were attending the party when Morrison and another youth, who escaped under a volley of bullets, entered the home.

According to Harlow, there was $25,000 in jewelry and cash in his home when the bandits made their entry.

Women's Leader for Campaign Is Chosen

CLEVELAND, June 5.—Direction of the women's end of the Republican campaign of 1924 will be under the guidance of Mrs. A. T. Hert, of Kentucky, widow of the late Republican leader from that state, it was announced today at Coolidge headquarters here.

Mrs. A. T. Hert will succeed Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton of Ohio, who, as vice-chairman of the Republican National committee, has been in charge of the women's division of the party ever since the nomination of Harding at Chicago four years ago.

Asks Newspapers to Exploit Royal Visit

MADRID, June 5.—General Primo Rivera today urged newspapers to promote public interest in the visit of the Italian king and queen. They are due Saturday.

Ask Intervention Of State In Probe Of Aqueduct Blast

LOS ANGELES, June 5.—Attorney-General U. S. Webb, of California, was today studying important evidence submitted in connection with the dynamiting, May 20, of the Los Angeles aqueduct with a view to taking personal charge of the investigation of the outrage.

The intervention of state authorities in the dynamiting was sought by District Attorney Asa Keyes because the dynamiting occurred at a point beyond the jurisdiction of Los Angeles county officials. The clues submitted to Webb, Keyes said, can only be developed by investigation in Inyo county, scene of the blasting.

In the controversy between the city and Owens valley ranchers as to water rights, a change of venue in pending suits will be sought, it was announced, owing to the inaccessibility of Markleville in Alpine county, where hearings are now scheduled.

ATTORNEYS PLAN DEFENSE BATTLE

Witnesses In Franks Murder Give Final Testimony Before Grand Jury

CHICAGO, June 5.—Battle lines were definitely thrown out here today in the "fifteen million dollar fight" for the lives of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, confessed slayers of 13-year-old Robert Frank.

Attorneys for the youths who said they killed Loeb's cousin "to get a thrill," visited their clients in their cells at the county jail for long conferences, while the state's attorney's office sent the last group of witnesses to the grand jury investigating the sensational crime. Seventeen persons who were to testify to statements in the confessions visited the jury room. Indictments were expected today.

Maintain Silence The first indication that the affairs of the boys have passed definitely into the hands of the million dollar defense array came today when, following the visit of the Buchtrachs, the prisoners flatly refused to visit the state's attorney's office for further questioning.

"We refuse on advice of counsel" was the word sent back when Mr. Crowe sent a request to the county jail for the presence of the youths in his office.

Police and detectives who ferreted out the evidence which resulted in the arrest of the youthful pair, stenographers who noted the conversations during which the boys confessed, and the man who found the body of the young victim were sent in to the grand jury room today.

Packing Houses Burn, Seven Firemen Hurt

FRESNO, June 5.—Seven firemen were injured, one severely, and damage totaling more than $100,000 was inflicted and 20,000 persons witnessed a fire spectacle unequalled since the destruction of the Forsyth building in 1921, when the Chaddock, Garcia and Maggini packing houses burned to the ground early today. The origin of the fire has not been determined. One hundred Boy Scouts aided police in maintaining fire lines.

Woman Sentenced on Bad Check Charges

LOS ANGELES, June 5.—Despite her protests that she was a victim of a "frame-up," Mrs. Elizabeth Bennett, 33, a private detective, was sentenced here today to serve six months in the county jail on charges of having written worthless checks.

Four Reported Killed In Battle With Reds

LONDON, June 5.—Four persons, including the Lisbon chief of police, were killed in a battle between police and the Portuguese anarchist "red" legion, said the outskirts of Lisbon, said a Central News dispatch from the Portuguese capital today.

BOND ISSUE BELIEVED CERTAIN

Chairman of Library Board Tells Pressing Need For More Space

The twenty-one victory for the Los Angeles school bonds augurs well for the outcome of the Glendale library bond election July 8, is the opinion expressed by T. W. Preston, chairman of the Glendale library board.

Mr. Preston as chairman of the board expresses hearty thanks to all who have unhesitatingly offered their services as judges and clerks in the eight consolidated polling places for the election. Mr. Preston says:

"A library is really a part of a community's school system, serving as a reference source and educational center for the better understanding of those subjects which are taught in the school rooms.

Library Inadequate "It is becoming more and more certain that if the jealousies and hatreds of this old world are to have any end at all, then this end can only be accomplished by education (and consequent enlightenment) of peoples.

"The Glendale library was a gift from Andrew Carnegie, costing $12,500 in 1913, and was intended to serve a population of 3700, which Glendale then boasted. But not the Glendale of today of 50,000 and more on the way.

"We cannot properly examine the books we now have and certainly cannot continue buying others, however much they are needed.

Branches Are Cramped "The rapidly growing north-west section has no building at all, a few books being housed in a twelve-by-twelve room in the Grand View school. The south branch struggles along as best it

HOUSE VOTES TO CHANGE DRY UNIT

Bill Would Put Prohibition Enforcement Duty In Treasury Dept.

BULLETIN WASHINGTON, June 5.—By a vote of 275 to 90, the House today passed a bill taking the prohibition enforcement unit out of the internal revenue bureau and making it a separate bureau in the treasury department. The change was urged by the Anti-Saloon league.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The District of Columbia supreme court set aside and declared invalid sections of the prohibition regulations giving the treasury department authority to limit the amount of alcohol which may be withdrawn from bond for industrial purposes.

The regulations were drawn by the treasury in accordance with the Volstead act. Numerous suits have been filed here to test their validity.

The court in its order today issued an injunction against Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Revenue Commissioner Blair and Prohibition Commissioner Haines, restraining them from further exercising authority under the regulations.

The injunction was granted to Earle Parella of Brooklyn, N. Y., trading as the La Gloria Products company.

Bitten by Dog, Girl Asks $5,700 Damages

LOS ANGELES, June 5.—Charging she was bitten by a dog and disfigured for life, Lorna Stevens today filed suit here against Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Kersh, alleged owners of the canine. She asked $5700 damages.

FACES COURTMARTIAL

SAN DIEGO, June 5.—The court martial of Lieutenant Ervine R. Brown, navy paymaster, accused of being short $120,000, will begin June 12, or as soon thereafter as practicable, according to announcement today by Rear Admiral Frank Schofield.

Vice President Candidate?

FRANK O. LOWDEN, former governor of Illinois, is being mentioned as a vice presidential candidate of the Republican party. The millionaire farmer declares he does not want the nomination. However, there is considerable talk of his being "drafted" for the place.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES For International News Service

CLEVELAND, June 5.—Despite his seeming unwillingness to accept it, ex-Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, continued to rule a favorite today in the Republican vice presidential reckoning.

Unless Lowden takes some definite stand against his being named, or President Coolidge indicates he wants someone else, it seems entirely possible that the millionaire farmer of Illinois will be drafted to fill out the 1924 ticket.

Many Available It cannot be rightly said there is any vice-presidential "contest," for there are no candidates in the avowed sense. A dozen men are considered available timber and of the lot, the former governor who almost was nominated at Chicago four years ago in place of Harding, commands the greatest following among the party leaders now in Cleveland.

Back of the Lowden strength among the party's lieutenants is the vague and haunting shadow of Senator Robert M. La Follette and the havoc he is capable of wreaking in the northwest.

Claims Lowden 'Ideal' Members of the national committee and others are almost a unit in believing that some one must be chosen for second place on the ticket who will balance the New Englandism of Calvin Coolidge, and, at the same time, have a speaking acquaintance with and a knowledge of the disgruntled wheat and livestock growers of the west and northwest. From this viewpoint, Governor Lowden is described as "ideal," for the past two years he has done little else but travel through the regions where disaffection is supposed to be most pronounced, speaking at farmers' conventions and swapping stories with them of personal farming experiences.

Five Jap Flyers Die As Airplane Crashes

TOKIO, June 5.—Two commissioned officers and three petty officers were killed and one injured when the seaplane F-5 crashed at Yokosuka today. It had just left the Yokosuka naval base when something went wrong with the motor.

ASSOCIATION ASKS CITY TO ASSIST PROJECT

Urges Waters of Sycamore Canyon Be Guarded by Big Box Conduit

A committee from the Southeast Glendale Improvement association, headed by R. Belcher of 605 West Colorado street, appeared before the City Council this morning and asked the assistance of the city officials in financing 25 per cent of the cost of a box conduit to control the Sycamore canyon flood water as far south as Forest Lawn cemetery.

Mr. Belcher stated that a committee from the association had been assured by James Reagin, county flood control engineer, that seventy-five per cent of the cost would be taken care of by the county but that no funds were available for placing a cover on the proposed conduit.

To Establish Grades According to assurances given the committee by Mr. Reagin, surveyors would be at work on the flood control channel within a week establishing grades. Mr. Belcher, who was the only one to address the council on the subject, asked that an assessment district be formed to raise approximately $25,000, which it was estimated the work would cost the property owners.

It developed during the discussion that the county has an easement for the channel and that the city could not form an assessment district including property over which the county held an easement.

Easements Required Mr. Belcher was advised, on the recommendation of the city attorney, to confer with Mr. Reagin and ascertain if the county would turn these easements over to the city of Glendale after their work had been completed, in order that the assessment district might be formed.

The legal technicalities incident to the improvement are declared involved, and it was the opinion of V. B. Stone, city manager, that the county would have to construct the ditch, leaving it open and that the city would have to follow this up later and cover the conduit for the property owners.

Seek Agreement The council instructed City Attorney Ray L. Morrow to confer with the county flood control commission engineers and endeavor to arrive at some agreement

ST. LOUIS GOLFER LEADS IN CONTEST BIRMINGHAM, Mich., June 5.—When all the stars had completed the first 18 holes in the open golf championship today, Bill Mehlhorn of St. Louis led the field with a finely played round of 36-36-72. Eddie Loos of Chicago and Los Angeles, and Dave Robertson of Detroit and Bellaire, Fla., were tied for second at 73 each, and behind them came Gene Sarazen, the professional champion, with 74, the same score as Bobby Jones of Atlanta, defending his title here, and Herbert Lagerblade of Bristol, Conn., who played with a set of all-steel shafted clubs.

MRS. WILLIS MAY KNOW FATE TODAY LOS ANGELES, June 5.—Mrs. Margaret Willis, Los Angeles business woman charged with the "trunk" murder of Dr. Benjamin B. Baldwin, may know her fate tonight. As attorneys made their closing arguments today, it appeared probable the case would reach the jury this evening. Eight women members of the jury joined with the defendant in weeping this afternoon when defense attorneys made final pleas to save Mrs. Willis.

CHARGES $500,000 GRAFT PAYMENTS WASHINGTON, June 5.—A half million in graft was collected by Jesse Smith while he was intimately associated with former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, it was charged in the Senate this afternoon by Senator Brookhart, Republican, of Iowa, chairman of the Daugherty investigating committee. The payments of graft to Smith, Brookhart declared, were made "chiefly by bootleggers" while Smith was living in Daugherty's apartment and acting as Daugherty's confidential man in the department of justice.

Social Events

Names Chairmen
Announcement of committee chairmen for the coming year was made yesterday afternoon at the meeting of the Literature department of the Tuesday Afternoon club at the clubhouse.

Mrs. H. D. Porter, newly-elected curator, named as chairman, Mrs. Edwin Cleophas, music; Mrs. R. W. Bolton, program; Mrs. F. L. Hollingsworth, hospitality; Mrs. G. H. Boone, social; Mrs. G. H. Rowe, publicity.

Announcement was made that the annual luncheon will be served at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday, June 11.

Musical entertainment was given yesterday by Miss Woodward, who played "Prelude" (Porter), and "Pierette" (Cham-nade).

The literary study of the afternoon was on the short story and short story writers. Mrs. Ralph Pickett gave an interesting sketch of the history of the short story and of prominent writers.

Mrs. W. H. Verity reviewed "Prelude" by Edgar Valentine Smith, declared to be the best short story of 1923 and winner of the O. Jeanette award.

Roll call was answered with world happenings.

A ten-minute book chat closed the program.

Hostesses were Mesdames N. M. Knaus and E. A. Lange.

Wed at Church
The Holy Family Catholic church was the scene Wednesday morning, June 4, 1924, of the marriage of Miss Frances King and Carl H. Zahn.

Rev. Michael Galvin was the officiant, reading the ceremony at 9 o'clock.

Miss King wore a bridal dress of white Canton crepe and heavy silk lace, worn with a horsehair hat. Her bouquet was of cream roses and sweetpeas.

Attending her was her sister, Miss Marcella King, who wore apricot georgette and lace, with hat to match. She carried sweet-peas in apricot shades.

Harold King, brother of the bride, was the other attendant.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. King at 1301 South San Fernando road.

Mrs. Zahn is the daughter of Joseph King of Moline, Ill. She has resided in Glendale for the past year and a half.

Mr. Zahn is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Zahn of Milan, Ill. He has spent two years in Glendale.

After a motor trip through the northern part of the state Mr. and Mrs. Zahn will return to make their home in Glendale.

For traveling Mrs. Zahn wore a tailored tweed sport suit, with hat and shoes to match.

Surprise Affair
J. E. Cornell of West Oak street was honored at a delightful affair last night given by Mrs. Cornell and daughter, Miss Dorothy Cornell in the celebration of Mrs. Cornell's birthday anniversary.

The affair was given as a complete surprise.

During the evening progressive Five-Hundred was played and prizes for high score were awarded to Mrs. R. E. Francis and B. H. Fellows.

At a late hour delicious refreshments were served with the birthday cake.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McIntyre, Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Carlisle, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Francis, Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Fellows, O. E. Summers, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Cornell and the host-ess.

Mothers' Class
There were about thirty members of the Young Mothers class of the Glendale Presbyterian church in attendance at the meeting held in the church yesterday afternoon.

The afternoon's program included an interesting talk to the Mothers by Mrs. Terry. This was followed by an informal social hour when refreshments were served by the hostess Mrs. Ed- ward T. Abbot and Mrs. H. C. Wright.

Lunch Tomorrow
A special announcement of im- portance to Tuesday Afternoon club women is of the luncheon tomorrow of the Home Economics department. Plans had been made for having the luncheon next week, but a change was necessary to an earlier date.

Mrs. C. W. Schwitter, curator-elect, announces that all members should make reservations at once by calling the clubhouse or by calling her at Glendale 1564-M.

With Mrs. Parr
Mrs. Frank Parr of 224 South Orange street entertained members of Chapter DJ, P. E. O., yesterday afternoon.

Routine business matters were considered in closing activities for the vacation recess.

Plans were made for the chapter picnic, for members and fam- ilies, Wednesday, June 11, at Brookside park, Pasadena.

P. E. O. Chapter
Chapter BA, P. E. O. will meet tomorrow morning June 6, at the home of Mrs. C. M. Calderwood, 370 West Salem street at 10:30 o'clock, it is announced.

Luncheon will be served at noon followed by the regular business session.

Luncheon Today
Women of chapter AH, P. E. O., are hostesses today at a luncheon affair at the Oakmont Country club. They are entertain- ing as guests members of other P. E. O. chapters. Mrs. J. Herbert Smith is in charge of the luncheon arrangements.

Chapter AH met yesterday at the home of Mrs. T. C. Young at 400 North Kenwood street. As- sisting hostesses were Mesdames Lucile Chester and Watties.

Plans were made for the picnic for members and families Wednesday evening, June 18, in Newport park, Verdugo Wood- lands.

Birthday Party
Mrs. F. L. Martinez of 1023 Mariposa avenue was hostess yesterday at a jolly children's party, celebrating the birthday of her daughter, Frances Whiteman.

Frances was ten years old and a group of her little friends were invited in to help her celebrate.

Games and music were enjoyed. Melveta Packard was fortunate in winning two prizes.

Later a birthday luncheon was served on a table pretty with pink and white decorations. A beautiful pink birthday cake with shinning candles was placed before Frances' place.

Mrs. Martinez was assisted by Mrs. Sam Proctor of Los Angeles and Mrs. George Wilkinson of Glendale.

The birthday company included Alice and Catherine Van Dame, Dorothy Moll, May Cullingsworth, Frances Harris, Melveta Packard, Wilma McAllister, Shirley Bennett, Dorothy May Proctor, Frances Helen Proctor, Florence Curtis, Marguerite Wilkinson, George Wilkinson, Frances and Samuel Whiteman.

Plan Picnic
Final plans for the annual picnic Wednesday, June 18, at the Eagle Rock park were made yesterday at the meeting of the Mutual Benefit Reading circle at the public library.

Reservations for the picnic luncheon are to be telephoned to Mrs. C. L. Viereck, Glendale 6742-J, Mrs. M. E. Rosenberg, Glendale 2133-M, or to Mrs. E. B. Moore at Glendale 15-W.

There will be no meeting next Wednesday because of the luncheon and conference of the P.-T. A. federation. The meeting will be held on Thursday, June 12, at the usual hour.

Mrs. W. M. Brown gave the review yesterday, presenting "Child Training" by Angelo Patri.

In the afternoon the study book, "Religious Training of the Child," by Hodges, was completed.

Meeting Friday
Students of drama of the Tuesday Afternoon club, who are members of the Drama department, are urged to attend the department meeting at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the clubhouse.

Mrs. Max Lynn Green, curator, will give a report of the recent Drama League convention in Pasadena, and a review will be given of the new success, "Mary the Third."

Plans will be completed for the department picnic.

Of great importance to members will be the discussion of the outline for the coming year's work and the possibility of en- gaging a dramatic teacher.

Surprise Party
Mrs. Hettie A. Pedder of La Crescenta, who recently returned from an extended trip to South Africa and other lands, was ten- dered a surprise party at her home last Saturday night by a large group of friends.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Lewis C. Sperry, members of a party who entertained Mrs. Pedder at Berkeley. The evening was devoted to an informal social time.

Initiate Six
The regular meeting of the Eastern Star Chapter U. P. will be held Saturday, June 7, in the Masonic temple at 8 o'clock, it is announced.

At this time a class of six will be initiated. All members of the order in good standing are urged to be in attendance.

Club Nominates
The regular meeting of the Par- liamentary Law club of Glendale will be held Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock in the juvenile room of the public library.

Nominations will be made for the annual election of officers. Mrs. Harry Greenwalt, president, will be in charge.

Law Class Meets
Mrs. A. H. Brown announces the meeting of the parliamentary class for 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night at the library. Subjects to be discussed are subsidiary motions, amendments and substitution and a quorum.

All Day Meeting
The Women's Bible class of the Tropico Presbyterian church will hold their all-day meeting Friday, June 6, at the home of Mrs. Frank Ashton, 423 West Myrtle street. All members are urged to be present.

Bridge Luncheon
Mrs. J. W. Hartman of 1206 Western avenue is entertaining the members of the Thursday Bridge club at her home today with a luncheon and informal social afternoon.

Doran P.-T. A.
The last meeting of the Doran street Parent-Teacher association for this year was held yesterday afternoon at the schoolhouse, with the president, Mrs. Clark Johnson. in charge.

A very short business session was held followed by a program presented by the pupils of the school. Pupils of the fifth and sixth grades rendered several songs, and children of other grades gave readings and piano solos.

The meeting was very well attended and proved most enjoyable. During the afternoon twenty-five copies of the Parent-Teacher association song were sold and a number of tickets for the federation luncheon to be held next Wednesday.

Shower of Gifts
The Misses Eunice and Agnes Caldwell entertained yesterday afternoon at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Caldwell, 326 West Wilson avenue, with a miscellaneous shower complimenting Miss Bertha Wheeler, a June bride-to-be.

The decorative scheme was artistically carried out with arrangements of pink and white flowers. The refreshment table was centered with a pink crepe paper parasol underneath which were placed the many lovely gifts for Miss Wheeler.

The afternoon was devoted to playing games, an impromptu musical program and a general good time.

The guests present were Mesdames S. C. Wheeler, Williams, Dutikunst, W. S. Caldwell, Wilma Dix and Misses Dorothy Wheeler, Louise Wimmer, Eloise Francy, Olive Bell Emery and the honoree Miss Bertha Wheeler.

Miss Wheeler is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Wheeler of 1125 East Harvard street. She will become the bride of Dean Williams of Los Angeles on June 14.

Regular Meeting
An enthusiastic meeting was held last night in the Odd Fellows' hall on West Broadway by the members of the Women's Union Label league No. 400.

The business session convened at 8 o'clock with the president, Mrs. H. H. Black in charge. At this time a lengthy discussion was participated in by the members relative to the amendment of the Constitution pertaining to Child Labor, regulating and prohibiting labor of children under the age of 18 years.

The nominations of officers for the coming year were closed. The annual election will take place at the next meeting, June 18, and the installation of officers will be held on July 2. The League No. 36 of Los Angeles will put on the installation work. Several neighboring leagues will be present. A banquet will be served at the close of the business session, it is announced.

Plans were inaugurated for a picnic to be held at the close of school. Further announcement will be made at a later date. Later in the evening refresh- ments were served. At this time Mrs. Pearl Dern presented a beautiful cake bearing the inscription "Union Label League No. 400," which was served with the refreshments.

W. C. T. U. Hostess
The regular meeting of the Glendale W. C. T. U. will be held Friday, June 6, at the home of Mrs. W. S. Caldwell, 326 West Wilson avenue. It is announced that all members are urged to bring with them the signed petitions for placing the Bible in the public schools.

D. A. R. PLANS TO BUILD HOME FOR GRIDLEY CHAPTER

Members Discuss Project at Annual Breakfast Meet In Local Church

By KATHERINE V. SINKS
Of The Evening News Staff.
Hopes that the General Richard Gridley chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, founded eleven years ago by the late Mrs. Mary Howard Gridley Braly, will be in possession of a chapter house at some not far distant date, were expressed yesterday during the annual "White Breakfast" at the First Congregational church.

During the eleven years' history of the chapter the membership has grown from thirteen members to well-nigh 100, so that the dream of the chapter house will some day be as delightful a realization as the beautiful home of the Tuesday Afternoon club.

The meeting yesterday was most significant in the chapter's history, for it marked the completion of the regency of Mrs. C. W. Houston, who is now the only living regent of the chapter, and the installation of Miss Ida D. Myers as regent, the third regent the chapter has had.

The late Mrs. Mary Howard Gridley, organizer of the chapter, was life regent.

Gift of D. A. R. Pin

Most deserving tribute was paid to Mrs. Houston yesterday, when Mrs. S. C. Leppelman, on behalf of the chapter, presented her with a beautiful D. A. R. pin. Since the organization of the chapter eleven years ago Mrs. Houston has missed but one meeting. During the long illness of Mrs. Braly, Mrs. Houston as vice-regent, assumed the active duties of the regency, attended council meetings and handled most ably the administrative affairs of the organization.

Possessed of personal charm, sincere in her expressions and earnest in the carrying out of her duties Mrs. Houston has won recognition for General Richard Gridley chapter from state and national officers. Under her leadership the chapter has grown remarkably and a splendid foundation laid for the coming year's

Well, Lookit This!

This is a picture, taken years ago, of the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital, recently razed. This picture was taken in the '90s when the building was St. Hilda's Hall, a school for girls conducted by the Episcopal Diocese of Southern California. The school ran for four years and then the old building stood vacant for almost ten years. One of the interesting pictures of old-time Glendale to appear in historical booklet, entitled, "First of the Ranchos, the Story of Glendale," to be given away as souvenir of formal opening of Glendale Security Building on June 14.

Free distribution of an attractive booklet, entitled "First of the Ranchos, the Story of Glendale," will be a feature of the formal opening of the Glendale Security Building and the new banking room of the Glendale branch of the Security Trust & Savings bank as announced for Saturday afternoon and night, June 14.

Glendale is a part of what was once the famous Rancho San Rafael, first land grant ever made by the king of Spain. It is from this fact that the title of the highly illustrated booklet, is taken. "First of the Ranchos" tells both by scores of rare and beautiful pictures and by a gripping story of the history of Glendale from the time it was first owned by the venerable Don Jose Maria Verdugo down to the present. The pictures have been gathered and the story written by Laurence L. Hill of the publicity staff of the Security bank. In anticipation of a visit of inspection from many thousands to the handsome marble-finished room of the Glendale Security bank on June 14, a large edition of the booklet will be printed. It is desired that each visitor shall have a copy as a souvenir and extra copies for mailing east to friends and relatives. A special printed envelope for that purpose will accompany each booklet.

JEWELER PLANS STORE OPENING

C. L. Winter Hopes to Greet His Patrons Saturday in New Location

C. L. Winter, jeweler, plans on opening his own jewelry store in the attractively outfitted building at 203 South Brand boulevard, one half of which is occupied by Dr. C. Stuart Steelman, optometrist.

Mr. Winter is a jeweler and watchmaker of considerable experience and was formerly connected with the Lewis Jewelry Company on North Brand boulevard, in the capacity of manager. He previously announced he would open his store in the new Security Trust and Savings Bank building, but since that time has changed his plans.

Fine watches and the better quality jewelry will constitute Mr. Winter's stock, he announces. He hopes to have everything in readiness for a formal opening on Saturday, June 7.

in Glendale since early days, have greatly assisted the bank's publicity department in gathering historical material for "The First of the Ranchos, the Story of Glendale." Both these pioneers believe that the booklet will have great value as a community advertisement that may be used in persuading more easterners to come.

These men were unanimous on the choice of R. F. Kitterman, Ed M. Lee, George Bentley, Roy L. Kent and C. W. Ingledue, composing a committee to invite representative business men to the luncheon next Monday.

At the final board meeting of the year Tuesday night at the Alley Inn on South Brand boulevard, it was decided that a group of local business men should lunch with the board next Tuesday.

Annual Report Given

Present at the meeting Tuesday night were C. W. Ingledue, vice-president, who presided in the absence of David Black, president; C. D. Lusby, J. S. Thompson, H. P. Arnold, W. F. Tower and Rex C. Kelley.

Mr. Lusby, treasurer, presented a satisfactory report.

Will Help City

Of the proposed drive for funds, Mr. Kelley says: "The Glendale Young Men's Christian Association will receive recognition in the approaching campaign the third week in September to raise $275,000 to be used for new buildings and equipment. This has been lacking in development, compared with the extreme demands that have been made by our fast growing city. The work of the 'Y' has been handicapped, and yet it has accomplished constructive and imperishable results within the years of its activity in the community.

"There is no city where the friendly and generous help of the Y. M. C. A. is more needed than here in Glendale. Much of the most significant aid that it has rendered had, by reason of the personal character of this assistance, remained unknown to the general public.

Unjustly Criticized

"It has been somewhat the custom of those who are unfamiliar with the inner history of the organization to criticize its efforts because of circumstances over which it had no control. Yet those who understand the success with which it has always met, its unswerving altruism and its faithfulness to ideals of manhood, realize that without its service every large community would be unfitted to deal with the great problems of the present.

MANY DELEGATES AT CONVENTION OF FEDERATION OF FEDERATION

Stringent Orders Are Made Regarding Credentials of Those Present

"Undoubtedly it is to be the largest biennial in the history of the federation. Already there are more delegates by many hundreds, than at a corresponding time at other conventions," was the declaration of Mrs. Thomas Gerald Winter, president, on the eve of the opening of the seventeenth biennial of the General Federation of Women's clubs.

Throughout every session and activity of the biennial Mrs. Winter's magnetic personality is felt. Regret is evident on every hand that her regime is fast drawing to a close.

Some confusion arose Monday and Tuesday in registering delegates, resulting in drastic action by the board of the federation. The credential committee was instructed to discard all credentials of women now living in California who present membership in clubs in back-home states, to which they never belonged. Also instructions were given officially by definite action that delegates who pass their badges to alternates or any others, shall be deprived of voting privileges. Many clubs, it was discovered, were presenting applications for six delegates, when only half that number were eligible to vote.

Many Glendadians

"Such is a serious violation of ethics," said Mrs. Winter, "we are determined this shall be an absolutely clean election."

One greets many prominent Glendale women in the convention throngs. Among those noted were Mesdames Daniel Campbell, A. H. Montgomery, F. C. Ayars, E. W. W. Hayward, Harry S. McCormack, M. E. Plasterer, H. E. Bartlett, C. W. Houston, A. A. Barton and Miss Eva Daniels, official delegates from the Tuesday Afternoon club; Mrs. Charles H. Toll, president of the Los Angeles District, California Federation of Women's clubs; Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, chairman of information; Mrs. Lillian Dow, who is assisting on Mrs. Hutchinson's committee; Mary B. Darrow, official delegate from the La Crescenta Women's club.

At the Friday morning session, beginning at 9 o'clock one of the chief features will be the first report of the resolutions committee. The rest of the morning will be given over to affairs pertaining to the headquarters of the General Federation in Washington, D. C.

Plan Organ Recital

At noon there will be luncheons at the Biltmore hotel of the department of applied education.

In the afternoon Mrs. Winter will again preside and there will be conferences on applied education. An organ recital will open the session at night. Later Dr. Aurelia H. Reinhardt, president of Mills College will speak; the Zoellner quartet will play; and Hugh S. Magill, general secretary, International Council of Religious Education, will speak on "Strengthening the Moral Forces of the Nation."

POPULAR COUPLE WED AT CHURCH IN LOS ANGELES

Charming Ceremony Unites Miss Florence Pfeiffer and M. C. Wilson

Miss Florence R. Pfeiffer of Los Angeles, daughter of Mrs. John Schumayer of Milwaukee, Wis., was a most charming bride last night, Wednesday, June 4, 1924, when she became the wife of Merlin C. Wilson of 1229 North Brand boulevard at a formal wedding in St. John's Episcopal church, Los Angeles.

Dr. George Davidson was the officiant, reading the service at 8:30 o'clock.

Over 150 invitations were issued for the ceremony and reception following at the home of Mr. Wilson's uncle, C. L. Whitehill at 1823 Gower street.

Bower of Flowers

The auditorium of the church was transformed into a bower of spring loveliness for the wedding. Palms, ferns and other greenery banked the chancel, while baskets of pastel shaded gladioli and blue lilies furnished the color note of the decorative scheme.

Before the ceremony Miss Ruth Abner sang "Because" (d'Hardelot) and for the processional and recessional the Lohengrin and Mendelssohn marches were played by the church organist.

Miss Pfeiffer selected a large wedding party and for the large wedding party she chose gowns in pastel shades.

Sister Honor Maid

Her sister, Miss Margaret Pfeiffer, was maid of honor. She was gowned in yellow crepe de chine over yellow satin, fashioned in a myriad of tiny ruffles. She wore a hat to match her gown, silver slippers and short white gloves and carried orchids and sweetpeas.

There were two other attending maids, Miss Cornelia Wilson, sister of Mr. Wilson, and Miss Iva Paul. Their gowns were most delightful creations of georgette crepe combined with lace and made bouffant, worn over satin. Each wore a crownless georgette hat to match her gown. Miss Wilson wore turquoise blue and carried an arm bouquet of pink sweetpeas, while Miss Paul was in orchid with a bouquet of yellow sweetpeas. Each wore silver slippers and short white gloves.

Little Flower Girl

Little Madelon Freeman was the flower girl. Her frock was of shell pink crepe de chine, made in a ruffle effect. She carried a white basket filled with rose petals, which she scattered in the bride's path.

Phil Kressinger of Los Angeles was the best man. Donald Suddall and George Loren Patrick were ushers.

Miss Pfeiffer wore a bridal gown of exquisite beauty. It was a creation of white mirror crepe satin, made with real duchess lace falling over flesh tinted georgette. Pearl cabochons were used effectively on one side. She wore a ragged edged veil held by a bandeau of orange blossoms. The bridal bouquet was a shower

AN INDEX OF WEALTH

The statistical matter compiled by the Class Journal Company and Automotive Industries presents instructive information upon the distribution of automobiles through the several states of the Union. The compilation gives the number of automobiles in each state, this figure being based upon the official record of the number of licenses granted, and also the ratio of the number to the population of the state. It reveals the interesting fact that in the eleven states west of Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Texas and the Dakotas the ratio of autos to inhabitants is one to four, but in the remaining thirty-three states and the District of Columbia this ratio is one to eight. This difference does not indicate that Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington and Wyoming own more automobiles than the thirty-three other states. It means only that there are fewer dwellers in the West than in the South, the interior and the East. This becomes evident when one notes that California, though having 3,426,861 inhabitants in 1920, had 1,100,283 autos on January 1, 1924, a ratio of one to three; whereas New York, though having a population of 10,385,277, according to the census of 1920, on January 1, 1924, had only 214,359 more autos than California, a ratio of one to nine.

The numbers of autos and the ratios vary quite noticeably as between the several states. As might be expected, the numbers are fewest in the Southern states, and the ratios between them and the populations spread most widely apart in the South. Inferior roads, less wealth than in other sections and "poor whites" account for the facts. Texas leads with more autos than any other Southern state possesses, having 688,899, but Mississippi has the smallest number, 104,400, while it and Georgia have the smallest ratio, one to seventeen. New York has the most autos, 1,214,642, but Ohio and Pennsylvania and Illinois press it close with 1,068,700 and 1,064,624 and 969,331 autos, respectively. Nevada owns the fewest autos, 15,700, but Delaware and Wyoming are almost beside the Silver State, for Delaware has 29,977 autos and Wyoming 39,831. The highest ratio of autos to population is recorded by California, where it stands at one to three, but Iowa comes next with one to four, and nine states have ratios of one to five.

Though no other state has so few autos as Nevada, the District of Columbia anomalously has 103,171 autos, whose ratio to population registers at one to four. Here the large figures are owing to there being relatively few dwellers in the district and to the wealthy members of Washington society having an abundance of autos.

IMMIGRATION LAW PROVISIONS

The new immigration law signed by President Coolidge makes the following provisions:
Preserves the basic immigration law of 1917.
Retains the principle of numerical limitations as inaugurated in the act of May 9, 1921.
Changes the quota base from the census of 1910 to the census of 1890.
Reduces the percentage from three to two, plus a small base quota for each country.
Counts certificates, not persons.
Provides for preliminary examination overseas.
Exempts wives, children under 18 and parents over 55 of American citizens.
Reduces classes of exempted aliens.

PERSONAL SUCCESS QUALITIES FOR OFFICE

When the business man wants the services of a department head or an employee he picks a man who has had some experience and success in that line of work. When the people want some one to represent them in an official capacity they seem to feel that any knowledge of the work to be done and any personal success the applicant has had are drawbacks. The public figures that every rich and successful man is dishonorable and every poor man is honest. This is neither a safe nor a fair way to judge, for the reverse is just as often the case.

There was considerable objection from some sources when Andrew Mellon was appointed secretary of the treasury because he is a wealthy man. Who but one who has made a success of his private undertakings should be competent to take charge of the nation's money? Should a man who has failed in his own business ventures and who has never had opportunity to handle large sums of money be entrusted with our business affairs?

Many Democrats would like to see Hon. John W. Davis nominated for president, but it is conceded that he has no chance, for he is practicing law in New York, and numbers among his clients many wealthy and powerful men and corporations. If elected president Mr. Davis would, of course, have to give up his law practice. Since Democrats and Republicans alike grant that he is a man of high principles, what bearing could his success as a lawyer have in the matter other than to better qualify him for president or any other position he might seek?

It is queer logic that reaches the conclusion that success in business or in a profession disqualifies one for public office.

A Pasadena pastor says Christ's teachings will stop all war. True—when Christians determine the living of Christianity is the essential thing.

"—AND DON'T SLAM THE DOOR!"

The Call Of The Blood

By DR. FRANK CRANE

JUNE 5—CRANE—THE CALL OF THE BLOOD.

He did not like music, nor art, nor books. He read slowly and with difficulty.

His wife was fond of all these things but he had no interest in the house except to oil his boots and look over his fishing tackle.

So, when the Spring came, with it came a great uneasiness, a desire to be away somewhere in the vast distances and in the wild woods.

For he loved all the living things that crept and scurried and flew in the wild outdoors. He could tell one kind of insect from another; he knew if a bird lived on the fruit of the land or on vermin; he knew hickory from oak, and the best fishing places where the bass lie and the pools where the trout jump.

So he was lonely in the city and the sight of the multitude irked him, and when the Spring came it brought with it a great homesickness.

He longed to be away, and when he had fixed his boots and rough jacket and put them on, he went away whistling to the north woods, happy at what was before him and no less glad for what was behind him.

Before him were the still places; behind him the crowded streets and families, one upon another, in apartment houses.

He loved his kind, but as the Indian loved his kind; the sort of man you can keep still with and sit all evening by a fire in the open and smoke tobacco that you have cut out of a plug. He scorned cigars and other pieces of tobacco that he smoked in other places than in a pipe or in a cigarette you roll yourself. Two sucks of the latter were worth more than forty otherwise.

He valued tobacco merely as the scent of humankind. A man should smell of tobacco just as a woman should smell not at all or of soap. He liked cooking, but it was beans and sow-belly that he cooked for himself over the open fire. He scorned fancy food.

He liked cleanliness, but the cleanliness of the open, bathing in water where you had to brush the ice from the surface and rubbing down with a coarse towel, not the cleanliness of the bathroom.

So he went away whistling into the north woods. He had not spoken much in the city. He was going where they did not speak much at all. He went away to the north woods because they called him by a thousand tongues he could not hear. He left the city because it repelled him in a thousand ways he could not feel.

ANNOUNCING EARTHQUAKE

(From Santa Ana Register)

Prof. Caselli of Italy, an earthquake specialist in a land where there is plenty of subject material, says he has constructed an apparatus which announces the quakes fifteen minutes before they arrive. He also says it is possible to tell beforehand just where the quakes are coming from and how intense they will be.

If this is true, one of man's greatest foes will be rendered comparatively harmless. From the beginning, the human race has had a horror of earth tremors. Millions of men and women, through thousands of ages, have perished from this cause. In modern times the tremors are doubtless less violent than they used to be, when the earth was hotter and its crust was more thin and brittle, but there is a new danger unknown to primitive tribes. Buildings are toppled down on the heads of their dwellers and great fires break out. If there is ample warning of a quake, people can escape from the buildings and save their lives, even though they lose their property.

It is a wonderful invention. Yet man has been curiously slow to produce it. Prof. Caselli says he has discovered, in his studies, that animals perceive the warning signs preceding earthquakes, and thereby avoid the danger. Man is only learning to do, tardily and rather awkwardly, what the animals have always done easily and naturally. They seem to have some sense upon which the electrical waves, sent out by the incipient earthquake, may register. Man probably had that sense and lost it, and so has to build clumsy machinery to replace it.

ART OF THE HUMORIST

(From San Francisco Journal)

It is generally interesting and entertaining and sometimes is informing, also, to gain entrance into the workshop of the literary craftsman and see how he makes his chips fly. Tom Masson, one of the professional manufacturers of humor, bestows upon the outsider this privilege of admission behind the scenes and betrays how the raw ore of laughter is extracted and then fashioned into a finished product.

According to Tom there are three ways, and three only, in which to wear the humorist's cap and jingle the mirth-provoking bells. One consists in using one's self, one's own personality and temperament, and transforming it into a foil to satirize men's folly.

The second is to create a fictitious personage or a group of imagined characters. The third is by burlesquing character and conduct or the incidents of existence.

"Artemus Ward" (Charles Farrar Browne) used the first of the three methods. He made believe, as children say, that he was the proprietor of a wax-works show; and under this make-up he wrote humorous letters. Finley Peter Dunne varied this method by disguising himself as "Mr. Dooley," the sage of the saloon on "Archey Road" twenty or more years ago at Chicago. Don Marquis blends the first method and the second, using his own personality and also creating humorous, imagined personages which he invests with the atmosphere that creates the illusion of reality. George Ade has almost invariably worked through the second means, inventing characters that have conceivably could have been in the central states of our country. Chappell and Stewart use the medium of burlesque.

This has in recent years enjoyed such vogue with humorists that it is worth while to quote Masson's ideas about it. He affirms that "in its larger sense burlesque is quite different from parody. It starts with the assumption whose verisimilitude depends upon the creator's art; and the illusion must be maintained to the end. We have two vivid examples of parody and burlesque: Stewart's 'Parody Outline of American History' and Chappell's 'Cruise of the Kawa.'"

The Stewart parody is history as it might be written by humorists, but it conveys truths that deserve repeated utterance. The Chappell burlesque ridicules those books about the tropic isles of the Pacific that several years ago became a literary plague. The social significance of this parody and of this burlesque is that they suggest that American enjoyers of humor have begun to learn to discriminate. Bill Nye's raw humor is tolerated no longer. The growing demand is for humor that has wisdom as well as wit and speaks to the brain no less than it tickles the midriff.

Worth While Verse

SONG

Because the rose must fade,
Shall I not love the rose?
Because the summer shade Passes when winter blows,
Shall I not rest me there
In the cool air?

Because the sunset sky
Makes music in my soul,
Only to fail and die,
Shall I not take the whole
Of beauty that it gives While yet it lives?

Because the sweet of youth
Doth vanish all to soon,
Shall I forget, forsooth,
To learn its lingering tune;
My joy to memorize
In those young eyes?

If, like the summer flower
That blooms—a fragrant death,
Keen music hath no power
To live beyond its breath,
Then of this flood of song
Let me drink long!

Ah, yes, because the rose Fades like the sunset skies;
Because rude winter blows
All bare, and music dies—
Therefore, now is to me Eternity!

The People —of— Anytown Character Sketches

David Snow was a born failure. He had tried everything and had never made a success of anything. But David was a fine fellow to have for a friend because he was always happy and optimistic. Success was always just around the corner for him. He never gave up hope and he always went into each new venture with all the enthusiasm of youth, although when I first knew him he was no longer young.

Born in Anytown, David Snow spent his entire life there. It was surprising to me that with his love for always trying something new and different he did not seek his fortune where there were greater opportunities. Maybe he could have made good some other place, but he stayed in Anytown. He went into business time after time but not for long and while he was making plans for another venture, he clerked in Elias Williams' grocery store. At one time or another Snow tried every line of business that could be carried on in a little place like Anytown and after he had run the gamut of business he was always connecting with some concern that was planning to develop something or other. Dave was constantly trying to sell us stock that would make us rich as well as him. Once in a while he squandered a little capital in Dave's schemes but most of us were too wary of his reputation as a failure and we, in Anytown, were not given to gambling anyway, so his stock-selling schemes were no more successful than his mercantile ventures.

As I said, David Snow was a pleasant fellow and popular in Anytown. He was tall and slender with black hair and mustache, a ready smile and a cheery greeting. Optimism goes a long way in this world and Dave Snow's cheer made him a pleasant companion and a good neighbor. His wife was a little woman who shared his good nature and she took Dave's failures as a joke. They were both happy-go-lucky and I believe they got as much out of life as if Dave had been wonderfully successful.

Dave was a poor business man but a good clerk. He might have made good as a salesman if he had left Anytown and got into the right thing. But he never thought of going away and perhaps it was well, as he always had a job to fall back upon there. They say it takes all kinds of people to make a world. I think we had all kinds in Anytown. Dave Snow was one of the odd ones but, somehow, although we knew he had always been a failure and always would be, we never thought of him that way. He was just one of us.

THE CASE OF JENNIE BRICE

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Copyright, 1924, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate

The story so far:

Mrs. Pitman, who tells the story, ran away from home to marry, and was never reconciled to her old Pittsburgh family, although she returned to her home town to live after she became a widow. She kept boarders in what was then lower Allegheny, where, because there were floods every year, rents were cheap. One March there was an unusually high flood. Miss Jennie Brice, as she was known on the stage, was having an unusually quarrelsome time with her husband, Mr. Ladley. Mrs. Pitman overheard them talking with a man, and Miss Brice said, "That's all very well, but what about that prying devil that runs the house?" That night the water rose high, and in the middle of the night another boarder, Mr. Reynolds, woke Mrs. Pitman to say somebody had just rowed away in the boat she had tied to the stairs in the lower hall. Mrs. Pitman later saw Mr. Ladley returning. He said he had been out for medicine for his wife. Peter, the dog, finds a slipper of Mrs. Ladley's floating in the parlor, and later a big knife of Mrs. Pitman's, with the blade broken. Mr. Ladley offers to pay Mrs. Pitman for a pillow slip he says was burned with a cigarette, and says his wife really was not ill, but went away in the night. A benevolent old gentleman, rowing around to feed stranded animals, stops Mrs. Pitman's, and offers to help her. His name is Holcombe. They discover that an onyx clock from the mantelpiece in Ladley's room is missing. They also find a blood-stained towel. Mr. Howells, a young newspaper man, comes to help Holcombe. Mrs. Pitman finds a slip of paper on which is written, "Rope, knife, shoe, towel. Horn—"

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

X—LIDA ON THE SCENE
The chief hung up the receiver and turned to me. "You are sure about the clock, Mrs. Pitman?" he asked. "It was there when they moved upstairs to the room?" "Yes, sir."

"You are certain you will not find it on the parlor mantel when the water goes down?" "The mantels are uncovered now. It is not there."

"You think Ladley has gone for good?" "Yes, sir."

"He'd be a fool to run away, unless—Graves, you'd better get hold of the fellow, and keep him until either the woman is found or a body. The river is falling. In a couple of days we will know if she is around the premises anywhere."

Before I left, I described Jennie Brice for them carefully. Asked what she probably wore, if she had gone away as her husband said, I had no idea; she had a lot of clothes, and dressed a good bit. But I recalled that I had seen, lying on the bed, the black and white dress with the red collar, and the yellow valise, as well as the brown case and opened the door for me myself. "If she actually left town at the time you mention," he said, "she ought not to be hard to find. There are not many trains before seven in the morning, and most of them are locals."

"And—and if she did not, if he—do you think she is in the house—or—or—the cellar?"

"Not unless Ladley is more of a fool than I think he is," he said, smiling. "Personally, I believe she has gone away, as he says she did. But if she hasn't, she probably took the body with him when he said he was getting medicine, and dropped it in the current somewhere. But we must go slow with all this. There's no use shouting 'wolf' yet."

"But—the towel?"

"He may have cut himself, shaving. It has been done."

"And the knife?"

"He shrugged his shoulders good-naturedly.

"I've seen a perfectly good knife spoiled opening a bottle of pickles."

"But the slippers? And the clock?"

"My good woman, enough shoes and slippers are forgotten in the bottoms of cupboards year after year in flood time, and are found floating around the streets, to make all the old-clothes-men in town happy. I have seen almost everything floating about, during one of these annual floods."

"I dare say you never saw an onyx clock floating around." I replied a little sharply. I had no sense of humor that day. He stopped smiling at once, and stood tugging at his mustache.

"No," he admitted. "An onyx clock sinks, that's true. That's a very nice little point, that onyx clock. He may be trying to sell it, or perhaps—" He did not finish.

I went back immediately, only stopping at the market to get meat for Mr. Reynolds' supper. It was after half-past five and dusk was coming on. I got a boat and was rowed directly home. Peter was not at the foot of the steps. I paid the boatman and let him go, and turned to go up the stairs. Some one was speaking in the hall above.

I have read somewhere that no two voices are exactly alike, just as no two violins ever produce precisely the same sound. I think it is what they call the timbre that is different. I have, for instance, never heard a voice like Mr. Pitman's, although Mr. Harry Lauder's, in a phonograph recording, is a voice that has always done for me what odors do for some people, revived forgotten scenes and old memories. But the memory that the voice at the head of the stairs brought back was not very old, although I had forgotten it. I seemed to hear again, all at once, the lapping of the water Sunday morning as it began to come in over the door-sill; the sound of Terry ripping up the parlor carpet, and Mrs. Ladley calling me a she-devil in the next room, in reply to this very voice.

But when I got to the top of the stairs, it was only Mr. Howells, who had brought his visitor to the flood district, and on getting her splashed with the muddy water, had taken her to my house for a towel and a cake of soap.

I lighted the lamp in the hall, and Mr. Howells introduced the girl. She was a pretty girl, slim and young, and she had taken her wetting good-naturedly.

"I know we are intruders, Mrs. Pitman," she said, holding out her hand. "Especially now, when you are in trouble."

"I have told Miss Harvey a little," Mr. Howells said, "and I promised to show her Peter, but he is not here."

I think I had known it was my sister's child from the moment I lighted the lamp. There was something of Alma in her, not Alma's hardness or haughtiness, but Alma's dark blue eyes with black lashes, and Alma's nose. Alma was always the beauty of the family. What with the day's excitement, and seeing Alma's child, like this in my house, I felt things going round and clutched at the stair-rail. Mr. Howells caught me.

"Why, Mrs. Pitman!" he said. "What's the matter?"

I got myself in hand in a moment and smiled at the girl.

"Nothing at all," I said. "Indigestion, most likely. Too much tea the last day or two, and not enough solid food. I've been too anxious to eat."

CAMPING TRIPS BEING PLANNED

Local Chapter of Western Rangers Has Very Busy Summer Schedule

Many activities are included in the summer schedule of the Western Rangers, a chapter of which was organized in Glendale this spring under the leadership of Charles Perlee. The local chapter known as "Acoma" has been growing rapidly and a large number of boys are attending the weekly meetings held at 7:30 o'clock. Friday nights at the Wilson Intermediate school.

Most of the Glendale boys are planning on attending the first annual "Potlatch" of the Western Rangers to be held in the main dining room of the Los Angeles City Club at 6:30 o'clock Friday night. A "Potlatch" in the everyday vernacular is a feed, or more elegantly, a banquet. A banquet of honor at the big jubilee will be John Steven McGroarty and Kenneth C. Beaton, more familiarly known to newspaper readers as K. C. B.

Outing at Camp Seely

A large delegation from the "Acoma" chapter has also made reservations for the outing at Camp Seely from July 7 to 19, which will be the first of a series of camping trips planned for the summer months. It will be the main camp of the Western Rangers during vacation and 500 boys are expected to attend from the coast counties.

Camp Seely is situated in a mountain meadow about eleven miles from Arrowhead lake. It is an equipped camp, and every boy will have an individual iron cot and mattress. A competent chef and assistants will provide a sufficiency of properly cooked food for all.

Leaders Are Appointed

The camp will be under the direction of Harry C. James, Chief of the Western Rangers, assisted by a corps of competent camp directors and leaders. Boys in camp will be divided up into small groups each under the leadership of a chief or guide.

Other trips scheduled for the summer include one to Yosemite from July 24 to August 4, an outing in Arizona, a six day trip to Camp Radford in the latter part of August, and a six day outing at Catalina Island early in September. All the outings will be under the supervision of leaders interested in boys' work.

NEW BURBANK-GLENDALE-PASADENA BOULEVARD

This new highway, that is planned to connect these three rapidly growing cities, is sponsored by the executives and members of the Fourth Street Improvement Association and is endorsed by the members of the Foothill Improvement Association, the Sycamore Canyon Improvement Association, the Western Avenue Improvement Association, of Glendale, as well as by similar organizations in the other cities through which it will pass when completed. The boulevard will traverse one of the most striking scenic regions of Southern California, following the foothills north of Glendale and passing through the sylvan beauties of the country between this city and Pasadena, affording relief from traffic congestion on the present highway system and enhancing property values all along the route it is designed to follow, its sponsors claim.

NOTE: THE PORTIONS INDICATED THUS /// REQUIRE EITHER TO BE OPENED UP OR WIDENED. THE BALANCE OF THE THOROUGHFARE IS NOW OPEN.

The project for the building of a through boulevard to connect Pasadena, Glendale and Burbank, which the members of the Fourth Street Improvement Association have sponsored, and on which they have been working for months, is rapidly reaching a stage where its backers are beginning to see the fulfillment of their dreams, and in the map that is being shown here the route to be followed through the Glendale section of the proposed new highway, is shown in detail, with the shaded portions of the route indicating those sections that have yet to be opened up or widened.

The resolution urging the construction of this boulevard, together with a map showing the route to be followed, were submitted to the Glendale City Council by the Fourth Street Improvement Association in March, when the Council was asked to instruct the City Planning Commission to have surveys made of the proposed route. The resolution follows:

RESOLUTION COVERING ABOVE BOULEVARD REFERRED BY CITY COUNCIL TO PLANNING COMMISSION FOR CONSIDERATION AND ACTION:

Glendale, California, March 20, 1924.
To the Honorable Mayor and City Council, Glendale, Calif.
Gentlemen:—We have the honor to convey to you herewith the following resolution and map which were adopted by unanimous vote of the Fourth Street Improvement Association at its regular meeting held in the Grand View school, Thursday, March 20, 1924.

RESOLUTION
Whereas, one of the most important projects now before the City of Glendale is the establishment of another through and continuous cross-town boulevard from Burbank to Pasadena, to accomplish which we propose utilizing Fourth street, Gilbert street, Sierra avenue and Glenoaks boulevard, hereby suggesting the following connections:

Fourth street and Gilbert street, along the P. E. tracks from Burbank to Brand boulevard; "Connection 1"—from Brand boulevard to Ethel street; Ethel street; Rossmore avenue;

"Connection 2"—from Rossmore avenue, where it crosses Glendale avenue, in a direct line to the so-called "bench" or "saddle" immediately north of Woodbury Heights, thence in as direct a line as practicable to Sierra avenue; Sierra avenue; Glenoaks boulevard; and

Whereas, the necessity for the above boulevard is self-evident on account of the fact that at present Colorado street, in connection with San Fernando road, offers the only through route between Burbank and Pasadena and our proposed route will have a better grade and will be several miles shorter for the people in the north and northwest sections of Glendale than the present Colorado street route, which is at present badly overcrowded and traffic on it is daily becoming more dangerous; and stantly increasing traffic, decidedly accentuated in the case of a fast growing city like Glendale, one of the vital necessities and valuable assets of a city is to have a well balanced number of properly planned thoroughfares;

and Whereas, the boulevard herein proposed will directly connect up the northwest section with the east section of our city and will afford desirable and necessary connections with other important thoroughfares such as Pacific avenue, Central avenue, Brand boulevard, Glendale avenue, Verdugo road and Sycamore Canyon road and will at the same time create a new and direct Burbank-Glendale-Pasadena traffic artery without in anywise interfering or duplicating the usefulness of any present established boulevard in our city;

Now, Therefore, Be It Resolved, That it is the sense of the Fourth Street Improvement Association; That your honorable body direct the City Planning Commission to take up for consideration the planning of the cross-town boulevard along the lines as hereinabove proposed and as shown on the attached map, causing the necessary engineering surveys to be made, and deciding upon such necessary widening of present streets, rounding off of corners, and the exact course of "Connection 1" and "Connection 2" and the solving of any other problems in connection with this project, as in its judgment will be for the public's best interests as well as that of the property owners to be affected.

2. That the City Engineer be instructed to have prepared detailed plans showing this new boulevard as it will run through the City of Glendale from the Burbank city limits to the Pasadena city limits.

3. That any future subdivision plans to be accepted by your honorable body affecting the above plan shall provide for the dedication of the necessary reservation of lands to conform with the requirements of this newly planned boulevard.

4. That upon the approval of the plans for this thoroughfare, the City Council adopt one name for this new boulevard to be put through in the City of Glendale. Respectfully submitted, JOHN H. RANDALL, President.

MRS. J. A. GYGER, Secretary.

Other improvement associations, sensing the value to Glendale of a boulevard of this nature and realizing the need for more and wider traffic arteries, immediately threw their weight behind the plan and warmly endorsed the proposal submitted by the Fourth Street Improvement Association, and the support given the plan by these associations has exercised a marked influence in the progress that has already been recorded. Those associations that have supported the project, together with a list of their officers, are given in the following endorsements.

Endorsements
The foregoing resolution, together with the map accompanying the same, was unanimously endorsed by the following associations: Foothill Improvement Association, Sycamore Canyon Improvement Association and Western Avenue Improvement Association, on March 20, April 23 and June 3, respectively.

The names of the officers and committeemen of the above four associations are as follows:

Fourth Street Improvement Association—J. H. Randall, president; Mrs. J. A. Gyger, vice-president; Mrs. J. A. Gyger, secretary; C. L. Jenkins, treasurer.

Executive Committee—O. M. Newby, right-of-way; Mrs. J. A. Gyger, roads, streets, parks and general beautification; J. H. Randall, police and fire protection; C. L. Jenkins, membership; J. A. Gyger, public utilities, water, lights, gas, telephone and transportation; Mrs. Myrtle B. Buckman, education, playgrounds, children's welfare; E. D. Knechtel, publicity.

Foothill Improvement Association—Alexander Mitchell, president; James Conner, vice-president; Mrs. R. L. Dahlgren, secretary; Clement B. Hill, treasurer.

Executive Committee—M. R. S. Charles Ellingworth, Dr. J. G. Grim, Mrs. Oliver G. Thompson, Mrs. Myrtle B. Buckman, Mrs. George Lucas, E. H. Botsford, C. L. Jenkins.

Sycamore Canyon Improvement Association—R. V. Griffin, president; M. E. Brown, secretary-treasurer.

Western Avenue Improvement Association—J. J. Hoover, president; W. R. Faires, secretary; W. L. Copeland, treasurer; J. W. Hill, captain of ways and means.

One factor that has aided in the development of this project to its present status has been the construction of Glenoaks boulevard, through one of the main subdivisions lying northeast of Glendale, where a scenic road is now under construction by the owners of the tract. V. B. Stone, then engineer in charge of the right of way department of the city's engineering department, and now city manager, was one of the strongest advocates of the proposed boulevard.

Boulevard
Who, having seen the steam shovel extending Glenoaks boulevard to Pasadena, has not exclaimed what a gorgeous, scenic route this will make—and who, having ridden on the Pacific Electric car from Glendale out Fourth street toward Burbank, has not pictured in his mind's eye what a wide, beautiful and important thoroughfare this will some day be?

way matters in the city engineering department, he foresaw the importance and necessity of another through boulevard to Pasadena from Glendale, and after wearing out a suit of clothes re-connoitering through the brush on the hillsides he was convinced that not only was a boulevard through Scholl canyon to Pasadena feasible, but that the same would be several miles shorter for points in the north and northwest of Glendale and could be cut through with a grade not exceeding 7 per cent. At first he received little encouragement and in one instance was actually ridiculed for proposing the project.

However, there were far-sighted men who had confidence in this young engineer's judgment and ability and today the Glenoaks Syndicate's steam shovel is hewing its way through this darling little canyon at a rate of ten feet where it will not be long before this drive will be open and used by thousands either as a pleasure trip or as a means of saving time.

In concluding arrangements with the Glenoaks Syndicate we were informed that V. B. Stone was instrumental in procuring a 10-acre parcel at the mouth of the canyon which has been set aside for a park site and that the value to the city of this park alone could be equal to the city manager's salary for the next ten years. Mr. Stone had the honor of naming the new boulevard—its name is Glenoaks boulevard.

Besides connecting up with Pasadena, there will be a branch from Glenoaks boulevard, which will afford connection with Eagle Rock and another branch will connect up with Devil's Gate Dam. The west end of this boulevard connecting with Sycamore Canyon road is still called Sierra street, but this stretch undoubtedly will soon take the name of the next boulevard. At this time the boulevard stops at Sycamore Canyon road.

Now let us turn for a moment to Fourth street as it runs on the other side of Glendale and through the city of Burbank.

Traffic possibilities along Fourth street in Glendale formed another argument in arousing support for the boulevard, as it was shown that the stream of cars that flowed between Glendale and Burbank has been steadily increasing to a degree that renders the construction of additional highways a matter for immediate concern. Burbank's growth, as well as that of Glendale, has exercised an important influence on the plans for the building of a new highway through this section, as the former city has forged ahead in the past few years to a position of prominence among San Fernando valley cities that renders her a vital factor in the development of this region.

Burbank
The potential traffic facilities of Fourth street are much greater than is commonly known—for instance, this thoroughfare will be mostly 140 feet in width and in some places 160 feet, including the Pacific Electric right-of-way. To visualize this thoroughfare as it will be when it is opened up and widened is to realize the enormous traffic it will be able to take care of.

Mr. Watson, chairman of the Glendale Planning commission, has stated that in his opinion Fourth street would be one of the principal cross-town arteries in the future and would carry an immense amount of traffic from the northwest section of Glendale and points beyond.

The "open sesame" for the whole northwest section of Glendale is the opening up of Fourth street. O. M. Newby has stated that this street is really the key traffic artery which will tap the whole northwest section of Glendale. It has thus far been bottled up principally because of awaiting the breaking up of the large Pelanconi tract of 200 acres between Grand View avenue and the Kenilworth tract, and also because there are a few engineering problems between Pacific avenue and Brand boulevard, which have not heretofore been solved. It doesn't matter much whether the encouragement from the property owners.

When Fourth street is opened up, prominent citizens and city officials of Glendale will have no trouble in locating Grand View school, nor will the merchants in town ask their Fourth street customers where Fourth street is and whether or not it only runs through Burbank!

It is true that throughout the whole distance of about 3½ miles from Brand boulevard to the Burbank city limits there is today not one brick or other-than-wooden building on Fourth street, not even a service station, and the explanation for this is that no one wants to build or locate until he knows what the width and grade of a street will be, so that for all practical purposes we might just as well say that so far there has been no Fourth street.

However, when this thoroughfare is opened up it will immediately receive an immense amount of traffic and there will be spirited building activity in the form of large substantial structures, which will give new life and prominence to the northwest section of Glendale and hasten the time when the whole stretch of territory between Glendale and Burbank will be solidly built up.

Fourth Street in Burbank
We are all familiar with the wonderful strides our sister city to the northwest has made with Glendale in the matter of growth. From a one-business-street little town, Burbank has been fast developing into the city class with more business streets and traffic arteries. It may not be generally known but Burbank has just finished widening and paving with six inches of concrete Fourth street from the Glendale city limits to Amhurst drive on the west. This gives Burbank another important thoroughfare 70 feet in width. Contract has also been let for the ornamental lighting on both sides of Fourth street in Burbank from Amhurst drive to the Glendale city limits. Next to San Fernando road, Fourth street is now the most important thoroughfare in Burbank.

Changes In Canyon History In School The Political Race Overdoing Things

By Gil A. Cowan

The Big Tujunga now is a full-fledged resort with camps and everything! Time was when that canyon was a first-class bandit's retreat, if we recollect history correctly.

By the way, do you remember the dates of the rise and fall of the Roman empire? Dr. Ernest C. Moore, director of the University of California, Southern branch, asked a class the other day about them.

They had no recollection of studying ancient history in high school.

History in high school is more or less a joke. At least, it was for the writer, and we consider ourselves a good example of one who went in the front door of the schoolhouse every morning and fled through the rear door without absorbing any more knowledge than was necessary.

Figures never spelled anything for us. We learned that the Roman empire did rise and did fall—the same as physics teaches one that everything which goes up must come down.

Two political conventions now are coming up. They undoubtedly will go down as very unimportant events in world history.

It doesn't matter much whether Mr. McAdoo, or Mr. Coolidge, or Mr. Smith, or somebody else runs for president.

Some people think so. That is about all.

Thoughts are healthful things to have. However, do not let any one thought worry you. Have a whole flock of things to attend to and you will never suffer nervous breakdown.

The person who loses his balance is like the woman who lived in the forest and went crazy after looking out the kitchen window for twenty years into the trees.

Too much of one thing is bad. Too much liquor, too much cake, too much music, too much reading.

Yes, too much comment, sometimes, is left unread.

Therefore we halt in our tracks tonight.

That's all.

Second Title Game Is Won by A-7-II Class

The second game of the championship series in the seventh grade at Wilson Avenue school was won by A-7-II class. Charles Caballero, being captain and pitcher for the team. The score of 8 to 6 against the A-7-I's, puts this team in line for the pennant if they can overcome the A-7-V team in their next game.

WANT CITY PARK ON EAST MAPLE

Two-Acre Tract Available For This Purpose at Site of Reservoir

Glendale will have a park on East Maple avenue if the recommendation of the members of the Glendale Advancement association is acted upon favorably by the city planning commission and the City Council. Charles Stuart suggested the association ask the commission to take steps toward locating a park on East Maple avenue, where the old reservoir stood, and the matter will be taken before the planning commission at the next meeting.

The plot of ground owned by the city and not used for any purpose now, covers two acres, and can be converted into a nice park, it is said.

Says Paving Ruined
During the discussion regarding the proposed park it was announced by J. C. McClish, that Maple avenue pavement, laid only two years ago, and with eight years' bonds to be paid, had been ruined by heavy traffic. Wagons loaded with debris from Colorado boulevard had cut the paving up, Mr. McClish said.

The question of urging the widening of Corritos avenue from Glendale avenue to the new station drew forth considerable debate. Mr. Stuart suggested the appointment of a committee to urge the planning commission to plat this work. Mr. McClish asked that endorsement of such a movement be withheld until after the street had been inspected by a committee. R. M. Brown said he thought the association was taking in too much territory and should not mix into the Corritos avenue matter.

The matter was finally disposed of when Herman Nelson suggested the subject be turned over to the committee on Forest avenue widening and paving, for inspection without recommendation.

Urges Clean-Up
Residents of Glendale are not taking to the clean-up week idea, Harry C. Jacobs announced. Weeds are not being cut, he said, and asked that the association again urge Glendaleans to clean up vacant lots before the end of the week, while the city will haul the rubbish free.

The members promised support to the baseball holiday on June 14, and to the Glendale White Sox. It was pointed out that support of the local team would result in benefit to all merchants. J. K. Todd said the bringing of a major league club here to train would be a deciding factor in getting a hotel at Broadway and Glendale avenue.

Sabbath's Bill Would Allow Quota Excess to Stay if Bonds Are Filed

WASHINGTON, June 5.—As a result of the recent supreme court ruling in the Gottleb immigration case, Representative Sabbath of Illinois introduced a joint resolution in the House which would permit aliens admitted to the United States under bond because of an excess in quota, or of wives and children of ministers and others who are free from quota restrictions, to remain in this country despite the court's decision.

Under the supreme court decision, the wife of Rabbi Gottleb of New York, was deported because of a full quota.

Business, Teaching Careers Appeal to Orange Co. Girls

SANTA ANA, June 5.—Out of 2646 girls answering a questionnaire prepared by the Orange county farm bureau for high and graded school pupils only sixty-eight announced their intention of marrying!

And only eleven of this number expressed a desire to go to the farm! But 981 would teach and 405 want to be stenographers, just to show you how they feel about things.

While fifty-three aspire to be movie queens there are eight who plan for religious careers. There are seventy-five who don't know what they want to do.

DAMAGED

HORRORS OF JAP QUAKE RECALLED BY GLENDALEMAN

D. R. Salisbury Tells Details
Of Tokio's Holocaust
Of Last October

Seeing a city of over 5,000,000 inhabitants nearly completely destroyed by earthquake and fire, thousands of corpses burnt beyond recognition strewn over an area of a few city blocks, and a distinct change of coast-line of the island, were some of the experiences of D. R. Salisbury who was residing in Tokio at the time of the Japanese earthquake.

Mr. Salisbury returned to Glendale last Saturday after spending four years in Japan as manager of the Horne Co. Ltd., of Tokio, a large machinery house owned by the Allied Machinery Co. of America, and has taken apartments at 1158 North Central avenue. He was in the city of Tokio at the time of the quake and saw two-thirds of that city burned to the ground and thousands of human beings burned to death and killed by falling structures.

At the time of the quake he was on the third floor of the Horne Company building, which was damaged considerably by the quake but was not destroyed. He describes the day as being bright and warm, very similar to a Southern California summer day, when the first shock came without the slightest warning. In Tokio there were three bad vertical shocks and several horizontal vibrations of from four to five inches. Several thousand shocks were recorded in the months immediately after the quake, averaging twenty-eight per day for a long period.

Pictures of Tokio

Mr. Salisbury has pictures of many scenes, the horror of which words fail to describe. He tells of one instance in the poorer section of the city where the government was building a military clothing supply depot and had cleared a large space in the center of the district built up closely with flimsy wooden shacks.

When the fire began raging, the people in the district sought the protection of the government inclosure which would have been a comparatively safe place if it had not been for the fact that each family piled as much of their household goods on their little two-wheeled carts as possible and wheeled them into the space with them. This inflammable material on the carts was set on fire by flying sparks and the thousands of people that had crowded into the inclosure met a horrible death as their writhing bodies were consumed by flames.

Pictures of this district taken by Mr. Salisbury after the fire, show thousands of corpses strewn over the ground and the few metal articles that did not burn, in many cases with the limbs burned completely off the body. Horrible beyond description are these scenes where the fuel for the fire had been human bodies.

He tells of another case where hundreds were burned before the doors of one of the large bank buildings. The bank had closed at noon on Saturday just about the time of the first shock. As the fire spread over the city, many people heard rumors of safety to be had in the fire proof structure and thronged in front of the building trying to gain entrance. The steel doors had been locked, however, and hundreds were literally cremated on the steps and sidewalk surrounding the bank building.

Corpses Choke Rivers
Other pictures secured by Mr. Salisbury show some of the hundreds of bodies that floated on the rivers and canals after the fire had destroyed the houseboats to which many had fled for safety. Many other scenes of death and desolation were taken during the week following the quake.

He reports that the reconstruction work started very quickly, and in a very few months the city was covered with temporary wooden structures with sheet metal roofs. Before the quake Japan was not in a healthy financial condition, as her imports were exceeding her exports at that time. The quake came as a great financial shock to her as it made it necessary to borrow money and place huge orders with the United States and England for building materials.

Although the tendency has been to finance the building operations within the country as much as possible, there is a question in the minds of many whether Japan will be able to do this, according to Mr. Salisbury. He says that the Japanese are going about it in a very business-like manner, in attempting to become re-established.

Exclusion Measure

In discussing the Japanese exclusion bill, Mr. Salisbury brought out the fact that the Japanese understand the Americans better than the Americans do the Japanese. He said that the reason for this was that nearly all of the learned people in that country had received their education in the United States. In that way the American manners and customs have been carried back to Japan, and it will be found to have adopted more American ideas than almost any other foreign country, he said.

In speaking of the educational methods he said: "Although the Japanese have been constantly bettering their schooling facilities, the standard of education is still very low. They supply excellent equipment but try to make

Clinical Group's New Quarters

Five doctors, specialists in their respective lines that cover the entire field of medical and surgical science, are associated as the Glendale Clinical Group in the new building erected expressly for their institution on North Central avenue. The offices and treatment rooms are on the ground floor, and the upper floor can be converted into a hospital should the members of the group decide that it is necessary.

CROWDS FLOCK TO SEE 'SQUASH HEAD'

Show Offered This Week by Murphy's Comedians Is Proving Big Hit

Are you a "Squash Head?" or do you know one, is what J. A. Menard of Murphy's Comedians wants to know. All who attend the show by that name, being given nightly at 8:15 o'clock, under the big tent at North Broadway and Stocker street, Casa Verdugo, have this question answered for them before the entertainment is over.

"The Squash Head" is a full length three-act play, of the farce-comedy type, full of clever dialogue and with funny situations coming fast upon one another. It is just such a play as always pleases and the large audiences nightly patronizing the comedians' offering proves its popularity.

Not only is the play sparkling, it is clean. No one need have the slightest hesitation in taking the children to "The Squash Head." The kiddies will get just as big a kick out of it as the grownups.

Two ailments are called squashes, the correct names being heat stroke or heat fever, and heat exhaustion.

experts out of students without giving them practical instruction. This is true especially in the technical schools, where the students are expected to learn how to operate machines from lectures without ever having handled one.

"The schools are still inadequate to care for all of the youth of the country, but the compulsory age has been raised from 14 to 16 years, which is a big advance. The standards of scholarship is not high because of the fact that the students and parents have such an influence on the instructors. When entrance examinations at the Imperial University brought out a large percentage of failures the standards were forced down.

Many Suicides
"Student strikes are not uncommon and they usually accomplish their purpose. It is also a common thing for students who have failed in examinations to commit suicide. A degree or passing grade means everything to the Japanese student, and it is seldom that an examination period passes without several deaths being reported.

"There are very few high-class engineers developed in Japan," said Mr. Salisbury, shifting to another phase of the Japanese life. "Foreign architects and contractors are called in for the erection of all large buildings and the accomplishment of most of the difficult engineering feats.

Adopt U. S. Methods
"They are learning rapidly from the Americans, however, and are quick to adopt their methods. For example, the Japanese builders were accustomed to erect their scaffolding by tying poles together and building up several stories in this way. When they saw the American automatic lifting scaffolds, they immediately began to use them."

Mr. Salisbury's wife and child had been in Japan with him up until a year ago, but fate decreed that they should return to this country before the earthquake. The Salisbury home in Tokio was destroyed by fire while the parents were at an afternoon tea, and D. R. Salisbury, Jr., was rescued from the burning house. Mrs. Salisbury was so upset by this occurrence that she and the boy decided to return to America and have been visiting at the home of her mother in St. Paul since then. They came to California to meet Mr. Salisbury on his return, and to visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Salisbury of 1136 North Central.

W. L. Truitt's Vision Aids Clinical Group To Carry Out Plans Successfully

The plans of the physicians and surgeons who compose the Glendale Clinical Group owe much of their accomplishment to the vision and the ability of one of Glendale's leading realtors, W. L. Truitt, 317 West Doran street, who collaborated with them in the plans that they had outlined and who erected for them the building on North Central avenue in which the clinic has been established.

The building, which is a handsome stucco structure that is a credit to the city, was erected at a cost of over $20,000, and is fitted out in a manner that permits the members of the group to carry on the practice of their profession now but that also leaves room for expansion as the sphere of their activities expands.

Starts Building
Mr. Truitt came to Los Angeles from Portland, Ore., in 1895, and his work then was that of an estimator on certain phases of the building trade. Riding his bicycle, he traveled over Los Angeles, selling sash, doors and paints to builders, and later, fired by the prospects of the growth of the Southland's metropolis, he launched out in the building business on his own account.

He moved to Glendale in 1906, still maintaining his Los Angeles connections. Later, however, he turned his attention to the erecting several of the most beautiful homes in Glendale, and the acquisition of a six-acre tract led him to branch out in the subdivision business and led him by a natural course into the real estate business in addition to and as a natural adjunct to his building business.

Another twenty-acre tract at Western avenue and Kenneth road was placed on the market by Mr. Truitt, and on this tract he also built a number of homes for the purchasers of the lots, widening his field of activity to include that of financing of the home building projects of many of his clients.

Joins Realty Board
His association with the Glendale Realty Board was another natural result of his entry in the real estate field, for he has applied to his operations at all times the high ethical standards that are demanded by the board of its members, and he saw in the realty men's organization a body that has been working toward the realization of a vision of service to the clients of all its members and one that has been steadily striving to raise the business of the realtor to the dignity of the other professions.

Mr. Truitt at present holds the position of treasurer to the Glendale Realty Board, having been chosen at the last election to assume this important post. He is also chairman of the program committee of the board, holding a similar position in the Kiwanis club, of which he is a director.

Lighter Moments
But business does not occupy all the attention of W. L. Truitt. He finds time to devote himself to a study of dramatics, and his peculiar humor leads him to the headlines' position on the programs that are presented at the entertainments of the Glendale Realty Board and the Kiwanis club, where his dialect monologues are always good for a long series of laughs any time he starts.

Mr. Truitt is inspired by a fervent love of Glendale, his home city, and, in addition to that veneration, he brings a vision and a realization to the possibilities of the future to bear that inevitably push him into the front rank of those who are striving to make this a better place in which to live and a city whose progress shall be steadily maintained.

LOCAL DE MOLAYS ELECT OFFICERS

David Lynd Chosen Master
Councilor; Plan Dance
On June 27

Election of officers was the chief item of business at the stated meeting of the Glendale chapter, Order of De Molay held last night at the Masonic temple. David Lynd was elected master councilor; Claude Whitfield, senior councilor, and William Felton was re-elected junior councilor.

It was decided to hold a dance on the night of June 27, and the monthly dinner on June 26. C. G. Farrow, as chairman of the entertainment committee will have charge of arrangements for these events.

It was reported at last night's meeting that the trip to Fillmore which was scheduled for last Saturday night had been postponed until this fall. The Fillmore chapter requested that this be done as the summer vacation was interfering with the chapter work, and the attendance would be small if the Glendale team put on the degree work there this month.

Commissioner Holds Inspection of Troop

The quarterly inspection of Troop 8, Glendale Boy Scouts, by Scout Commissioner Wilson, took place Wednesday night at the Knights of Columbus clubhouse and was followed by a program prepared by the boys in honor of Mr. Wilson. Special guests of the evening were the members of Troop 4, Girl Scouts, of Glendale, Jesse E. Smith, Grand Knight of the order that sponsors the troop, addressed the boys. Hugh Bryan, who acted as spokesman for the boys, responded. Besides the Girl Scout troop there were present about 60 persons, who represented the parents and friends of the boys.

Emerson Students In Last Recital Tonight

Pupils of the professional and junior departments of the Emerson School of Self-Expression will be heard Saturday night in their final recital of the year in the Knights of Pythias hall on South Broadway and boulevard at Park avenue. The junior department will give "The Old-Fashioned Huskin' Bee" and specialty numbers with solos by children from "The Deestric Skule."

Conclusion of the program will be a playlet, "The Burglar," by professional students.

ASK SOLUTION OF SCHOOL PROBLEM

Walnut Harvest Interferes with Lessons; Try to Arrange Matters

LOS ANGELES, June 5.—Efforts to enable children of migratory laborers to work during the walnut harvest and still attend school are being made by a special committee of the Los Angeles Farm bureau, in an attempt to eliminate past unsatisfactory conditions.

Investigations of the solutions worked out in other parts of the state are being made and possibilities of special school facilities that would solve the walnut growers' problem and also eliminate the necessity of children violating the state school law are being considered.

The outcome of the committee's work is being watched with interest by growers and packers throughout Southern California, as this type of labor is relied on largely for harvesting of the crop.

Into Our New Building--

Saturday, June 14, at 4 o'clock, we will open the doors of our new home at the corner of Brand and Broadway, directly opposite our present location.

The new home of the SECURITY BANK is the first metropolitan office building in Glendale and marks a milestone in the development of the city.

During the afternoon and evening we will hold a reception from four till ten, and will show you about the bank and through the building.

The confidence and good will of the people of Glendale, as expressed in the growth of our business, has made this achievement possible.

Glendale Clinical Group—Its Personnel and Purpose!

PHYSICAL EXAMINATION EVERY SIX MONTHS IS FACTOR IN LONGER LIFE

Prevention of Many Fatal Diseases Insured by Periodic Tests of Body's Condition
by Competent Physicians, Claim

A complete physical examination once every six months would save more lives than any one other step in preventive medicine, in the opinion of members of the Glendale Clinical Group, who liken the human system to a delicate machine that should be checked up periodically, to see that each part is functioning properly of itself and in harmony with the whole.

From bad teeth to flat feet, every part of the body that is not up to par is contributing to the collapse of the entire structure, it is stated, and the big job of a clinic is to locate the cause of a general disorder and eliminate it, thus restoring the system to normal.

To illustrate how a comparatively slight defect may throw the whole machine out of order, the case is cited of a patient in whom diabetes was discovered in an incipient stage as the result of a regular semi-annual examination. Searching for the cause, four ulcerated teeth were found. When the cause was removed the diabetic condition at once cleared up.

Neuritis Cured
Another case cited was that of a woman patient who had for years suffered with neuritis. A thorough physical examination revealed that her tonsils were infected. Removal of the tonsils eliminated the condition, which, it is asserted, has not returned.

When it is realized that the average adult takes 48,000 breaths a day, it is readily seen that nine-tenths of all human ills enter the body through the nose and throat, it is pointed out. Hence it is here that the modern doctor first looks for trouble. Infections of the nose and throat readily enter the blood stream, it is averred, and are carried to every part of the body, coming to rest and developing wherever the conditions of local irritation and reduced vitality are favorable.

Blood Infections
A host of disorders that bring on infirmity and death are traceable directly to infections taken into the blood stream through the nose and throat, it is declared, among them not only diabetes and neuritis but rheumatism, Bright's disease, stomach trouble and, in fact, malfunction of practically every organ of the body, including the brain and nervous system. Many a person in apparently perfect health is carrying around a local infection that is throwing powerful poisons into the blood stream, he states, burdening the organs of the body beyond their normal powers of elimination, with the result that the poisons pile up and a major disease takes root.

Regular and thorough physical examinations by competent doctors, covering the entire body, are unfailing safeguards against such disasters to the human machine. But—and Dr. Bower makes this a very important point—a physical examination will do no good unless the patient will obey to the letter the orders of the doctor for correcting any abnormal condition found.

Obeys Physicians
The long life of John D. Rockefeller is attributed largely to his habit of thorough physical examinations at frequent intervals by high class medical men and to absolute obedience to the edicts laid down by his physicians. In short, the aged multi-millionaire has entrusted the keeping of his physical body to a group of experts in whom he has explicit confidence. The result is that his long life and possession of his faculties is amazing the world.

Fully equipped laboratories for making every kind of analysis are to be found in the home of the Glendale Clinical Group. Whether it be a blood test or an X-ray, the doctors of the group have at their disposal the very most advanced instruments of medical science.

Here in these advanced laboratories growth of rare bacteria may be studied and vaccines prepared for counteracting the most tenacious maladies. It is such facilities that have brought medicine to its present development, it is declared, and it is in the possession of these facilities as much as in the association of a group of physicians, each an expert in his field, that the strength of a clinic lies.

Clinic's Reception And Waiting Rooms

An atmosphere of comfort predominates in the handsome foyer of the Glendale Clinical Group's building, and visitors to the institution are welcomed amid restful, homelike surroundings. The offices of the members of the group are on the ground floor, and the second floor, at present leased as offices, is constructed so that it can be converted into a hospital should the requirements of the doctors render such a step necessary.

Glendale Clinical Group Includes Physicians Of Scientific Attainments

Each of the five doctors comprising the Glendale Clinical Group at 136 North Central avenue brings to the association a clean-cut, dynamic personality. All were in the late war. All are close personal friends. Each is a specialist in his particular field. It is, they feel, an able, workmanlike group, destined to achieve a big success in Glendale.

Dr. A. C. Bower, organizer and head of the group, comes from Hanford, in the San Joaquin valley, where three years ago he organized a similar group, which has become very successful. A graduate of the Rush Medical College, University of Chicago, class of 1916, he was a teacher at the university and served in the U. S. army under General Leonard Wood, at Camp Funston, Kan., and later with General U. S. Wright, in France, where he organized and conducted the highly successful field laboratory of the 89th Division. Later he served at Pershing's advanced general headquarters in the occupied area. He is a specialist in internal medicine, diagnosis and diseases of children.

Varied Activities
Dr. Bower is a member of the American Legion, Kiwanis club, Boy Scouts, of which he was a scoutmaster, and is a Mason and an Elk. At Camp Funston he became acquainted with Dr. F. W. Loring, a fraternity brother. On his discharge from the army he came to California and established the Hanford clinic, bringing into the association Dr. Loring and Dr. L. A. Wright, both of whom are associated in the present group.

Dr. F. W. Loring, an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, is a graduate of the University of Toronto, class of 1910, and has been in practice ever since, serving in the war on the staff of the 35th Engineers in France, where he received a citation for unusually meritorious service from General Pershing.

Wins Distinction
Dr. L. A. Wright, an exodontist and oral surgeon, was the first dentist in the United States to receive the degree of B. S. D. (bachelor of science in dentistry). In addition he holds the D. D. S. degrees from the same institution, the University of Illinois. The B. S. D. degree was awarded for special research work as an undergraduate. He is recognized as a leader in his field.

Dr. N. C. Paine, surgeon, is a graduate of the Rush Medical College, class of 1918, and was formerly a University of Chicago varsity football star, being considered one of the best quarterbacks of his day. He served as interne in the Cook County hospital, Illinois, a giant institution of 2500 beds. It was by coaching football teams, following his graduation from the university, that he put himself through medical college. During the war he served as an officer-instructor at the University of Arkansas S.

A. T. C. Later he was in charge of the hospital at the Iowa State College. Dr. Paine holds the diploma issued after passing strictest examination given in U. S. by the National Board of Medical Examiners, which is recognized by all the states of the Union as well as by the U. S. army and navy, and in England, France and other foreign countries. Last year he was secretary of the Tulare County Medical society.

Stanford Graduate
Dr. A. L. Munger, obstetrician and specialist in the diseases of women, is a graduate of the pioneer medical class at Stanford University, class of 1913. He was an interne for a year and a half in the county hospital there and later served two years at the Stanford hospital, was assistant medical director of the San Francisco maternity and later taught his subject at Stanford Medical College for several years. Still later he was visiting chief of the San Francisco hospital. When the war came he was with "California's Own," the 8th Division.

The five doctors of the Glendale Clinical Group have selected F. W. Leggett as their business manager, a man of practical experience in this line of work, having formerly been manager of the service department of the Mayo Brothers' Clinic at Rochester, Minn.

The staff of the Glendale Clinical Group is completed by Miss Georgia Ralya, expert bacteriologist and technician, who has charge of the laboratory analysis.

Glendale Woman Is One of Hostesses To Club Candidate

The biennial convention in Los Angeles is proving of special interest to Mrs. Margaret M. Gale of 122 North Cedar street, who was one of the hostesses yesterday afternoon at the Colorado state reception honoring Mrs. John D. Sherman, one of the three candidates to succeed Mrs. Winter to the presidency.

Mrs. Gale has the distinction of having been president of the Colorado Federation of Women's clubs when it was organized.

ABILITY TO PAY TO GOVERN FEES DOCTORS CHARGE

Best Medical Service to Be Available for Patients at Local Clinic

The best service at the lowest cost commensurate with the best is the policy upon which the Glendale Clinical Group at 136 North Central avenue has been founded. It was on this principle that they formerly operated their successful clinic in the San Joaquin valley, and it is stated that the Mayo brothers operate their great plant at Rochester, Minn., on a similar principle, believing that charity work debases the medical profession.

Doctors as well as lawyers and other professional men must receive adequate compensation for the strenuous and unflinching service they render, he believes. A doctor frequently puts in over ten years of unproductive apprenticeship before he finally prepares himself for the exacting profession of medicine. This investment of money and time is frequently overlooked by the public, who feel that a doctor is a sort of free public servant.

Basis for Charges
The ability to pay will be the criterion of judgment with the Glendale Clinical group, the charge being based on what the service is worth to the individual. To make this point clear, the practice of the Mayo brothers is cited in charging rich and poor alike, and giving the poor man a receipted bill for his payment of a small portion of the bill, while his richer brother would gladly pay the entire charge.

Any other practice would lower the high standards of the profession, it is felt, either by admitting charity cases or by barring many whose need is urgent, but whose means are small. The Glendale Clinical group will be operated to encourage the patronage of all who are in ill health so long as there is a willingness on the part of the patients to pay that proportion of what the service is worth that is within their means.

USED MANY YEARS

Quinine is the powdered bark of the cinchona tree, and its use dates back to the seventeenth century. The tree is native to Peru, but since about 1860 has been successfully grown also in India, where, because of climatic conditions its efficacy as a drug was realized as worth the effort to transplant some of the cinchona trees. The tree died en route, but the seed remained alive.

One large incubator in this country hatches 3,000,000 chicks each season.

Specialists In Charge Of Every Department In New Medical Institution

Establishment of the Glendale Clinical Group at 136 North Central avenue, in a beautiful and spacious building erected for their special use by W. L. Truitt, brings to this city a departmentalized medical institution of broad service, established along the lines of the famous Mayo brothers' curative plant at Rochester, Minn.

The group, comprising five specialists, each eminent in his field, is headed by Dr. C. A. Bower, in charge of general diagnosis, internal medicine and diseases of children. In charge of surgery is Dr. N. C. Paine. Eye, ear, nose and throat work, with the fitting of glasses, is handled by Dr. F. W. Loring. Obstetrics and the diseases of women are entrusted to Dr. A. L. Munger. Oral surgery and exodontia (tooth extraction) are in charge of Dr. L. A. Wright.

Years of Experience

These five men, comprising the Glendale Clinical group, have all had war work supplemented by years of teaching and hospital service. They are regarded as leaders in their profession and represent the peak of modern medicine. Prior to locating the group in this city, Dr. Bower for three years conducted a highly successful clinic along similar lines in the San Joaquin valley.

When he decided to locate in Glendale, through the efforts of the Pacific-Southwest bank he got in touch with C. W. Ingledue, realtor, 109 South Glendale avenue, who put him in contact with W. L. Truitt, builder and owner of the structure where the group is located. The first plans for the building were drawn on the back of an envelope. Mr. Truitt later went with Dr. Bower to Hanford, where they studied the plans of the group the latter had founded there. An architect was then called in, and the final plans carefully worked out.

May Have Hospital

Before this was done, however, Dr. Bower and Mr. Ingledue visited the city council chambers, where they received the assurance that the clinic would meet with no legal objections. The assurance was also given, Dr. Bower states, that if necessary a hospital might be added at a later date, and with this in view Mr. Truitt caused a two-story building to be erected for their use. The second floor is at present leased as office space, but was built so that it may be converted into a hospital any time.

The building of the Glendale Clinical group contains on its main floor the offices of the five associated doctors and the special examining rooms of each, fully equipped for the particular functions they perform. It contains in addition an ambulance entrance in the rear, a receiving room, clinical laboratory, operating rooms, recovery rooms, X-ray and electric treatment rooms, dental department, gas room and other highly specialized departments. The main entrance opens on a reception hall, attractively appointed.

Credit to Glendale

In erecting the permanent home of the Glendale Clinical group, W. L. Truitt spared no pains or expense to furnish Dr. A. G. Bower and his associates with facilities second to none in California. The result is an institution that is a credit to Glendale and the entire surrounding country, and is already known afar, a curative plant where everything short of major surgery is handled under the most ideal conditions by specialists whose training and experience make them exceptionally well qualified to handle any cases along their particular lines.

Considered as a balanced unit, the Glendale Clinical group covers the entire field of modern medicine and surgery, reaching by accurate diagnosis and efficient treatment practically every ailment of the human body. C. W. Ingledue, W. L. Truitt and others who have watched the development of this institution from the start consider that such an institution stamps Glendale as a leader among Southern California cities.

AUTOMOBILE FOOT

According to a New York physician many automobile drivers develop a new form of foot trouble through the use of the pedals on their cars that in some cases have become actual deformities.

New Issue Stamps

Stamp collectors now have an opportunity to invest in a new issue of Uncle Sam's stamps, the Huguenot-Walloon, which the postoffice department was authorized to issue in commemoration of the landing of the Huguenots, 300 years ago, in 1624.

A limited supply has been received by the local postoffice in one, two and five-cent denominations, reports Dr. Ripley Jackson, postmaster. It is expected that there will be a large demand for the new issue among philatelists. The stamps are about double the size of the standard stamp.

SCIENTIFIC PROGRESS IS TOLD

Advances of Science Demand Specialists in Every Medical Field

Medicine has advanced further in the last forty years than in the preceding forty centuries, according to Dr. A. G. Bower, who heads the Glendale Clinical Group, and in the last ten years it has advanced further than in the preceding forty years.

Indeed, so rapid has been its advance that no one doctor can any longer cover the entire field, and even specialists nowadays are finding it difficult to keep up with the developments of their own particular branch, he states, with the result that clinical groups have come as a natural solution of the problem.

These groups had their inception at the medical colleges, where student doctors and visiting physicians and surgeons gathered to study at first hand the methods of the leaders in their profession. Then came such private clinics as that established by the Mayo brothers at Rochester, Minn.

War's Stimulus

The late war gave clinical groups an immense stimulus, Dr. Bower believes. Doctors thrown together in the army hospitals naturally departmentalized their work, and the effect was to the great advantage of the soldier patients. Following the war, many of these doctors were loath to return to general practice. The five members of the Glendale Clinical group were of that number. The group formed by Dr. Bower in the San Joaquin valley was a natural result.

The advantages of a group of doctors associated together are many, it is pointed out. The patient has the benefit of a consultation of doctors in his particular case at far less than the cost of seeing each doctor separately. And the several doctors being specialists, each is able to keep up with the most advanced developments in that field. The overlapping that naturally results from several doctors entering into a patient's case greatly lessens any possibility of missing any symptom or evidence of disease. The total result is the saving of many lives that under old methods would unquestionably be lost.

Turn to Specialists

Naturally some general practitioners of the old order have a tendency to resent the development of the clinical group idea, it is conceded. They feel it removes the personal touch of the so-called "family doctor," who knows all his patients by their first names. While it may do this to a certain extent, it is said, the patient unquestionably gets something more important—an exact, scientific treatment of their particular cases by experts.

Family doctors are coming to realize their limitations, states Dr. Bower, and are referring more and more puzzling and critical cases to the specialized organizations such as the Glendale Clinical Group, realizing that in this service lies a co-operation that fills a long felt need.

SUPPORT ASKED IN TAX APPEAL

City Manager Wants Endorsement in Request for Glendale Grant

If Glendale is to receive a portion of the tax money collected under the motor vehicle registration act during 1923, the board of supervisors of Los Angeles county must be urged to make this city an allotment, stated V. B. Stone, city manager, this morning. Some time ago Mr. Stone asked for a portion of this money to be expended on San Fernando road within the city limits on the ground that it was a state highway.

The board of supervisors recently allotted the city of Los Angeles $100,000 for work to be done on this same thoroughfare in the Los Angeles city limits, and the city manager is endeavoring to get a similar grant in a smaller amount for Glendale.

Action must be taken, he says, before the money in the hands of supervisors at the present time is all allotted. The Exchange club at its weekly luncheon Tuesday passed a resolution endorsing the city manager's action in the matter and he asks that all Glendale organizations forward a communication to the county authorities urging that Glendale be given a share of the tax money.

Hours of work for household servants in New Zealand are regulated by law. Thirteen hours on duty, with two hours out for meals, is a day's work.

REPORT ON OIL PROBE IS READ BEFORE SENATE

Leasing of Teapot Dome Is Declared Illegal by Montana Solon

By KENNETH CLARK
For International News Service.
WASHINGTON, June 5.—
Leasing of the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills naval oil reserves to Harry F. Sinclair and E. L. Doheny
by ex-Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall and former Secretary of the Navy Edwin B. Denby, cannot be justified legally, morally or from a good business standpoint, said Senator Thomas J.
Walsh, unofficial prosecutor of the public lands committee, today in a report to the Senate.

Walsh's report, covering thirty-six printed pages, exhaustively reviewed the naval oil reserve scandal, but failed to outline definitely any legislative recommendations for tightening up the existing leasing laws.

He explained that present laws were adequate to prevent a similar recurrence of the scandal, which the committee has investigated since last October, if federal officers in charge of the reserves did not delegate to themselves "unwarranted assumption of authority" or did not abandon the "settled policy of the government," compelling retention of the oil in the ground for emergency use by the navy.

No Conspiracy
Walsh announced in the report that there was no evidence of a conspiracy in the Teapot Dome national convention of 1920 contemplating the exploitation of government oil lands during the Harding administration and said that the committee has found no appreciable evidence of dealings by public officials in the stocks of the Sinclair and Doheny Oil companies.

Fall, Sinclair, Doheny and Denby were savagely assailed in the report for the lease negotiations which Walsh said were "reprehensible and tainted with suspicion."

The famous $100,000 loan by Doheny to Fall; the $25,000 loan by Sinclair to Fall, and Fall's use of a detachment of marines to drive squatters off Teapot Dome were particularly singled out by Walsh for bitter denunciation.

Attacks Doheny Loan
Pointing out that Fall entered the cabinet in straitened financial circumstances, but in 1922 purchased property involving from $170,000 to $200,000, Walsh said, speaking specifically of the Doheny loan, "The committee refrains from characterizing the transaction referred to, it does not hesitate to condemn it as, in the last degree, reprehensible on the part of all concerned in it. The essentially corrupt character of a loan made under such circumstances requires no comment, as it would be impossible for an officer to accept a loan of such amount or perhaps of any amount under the circumstances without a sense of obligation to the lender, which, unless his character was cast in heroic mold, would be revealed in subsequent official transactions with him."

"Its sinister import is appreciated when it is borne in mind that, without competitive bidding, Doheny got from Fall, in the month of April, following the loan, the contract for the construction of the tanks at Pearl harbor, and with it a preference right to the lease of a large share of naval reserve No. 1 (Elk Hills), to be followed, without competitive bidding, by a lease of the entire reserve, comprising over 30,000 acres, estimated to contain 250,000,000 barrels of oil, out of which Doheny told the committee he would be in bad

tions and we feel sure you will on

The council opened bids for the ening and paving of Central av-ments were approved.

of the traffic commission filed luck if he did not make $100,000-000 profit."

Use of Marines
Ordering of marines to Teapot Dome was described as "a perfectly outrageous use of the armed forces of the United States."

"The civil arm of the government was unquestionably equal to the emergency," Walsh said. "It is perfectly obvious that the procedure followed was pursued to avoid a judicial inquiry into the validity of the Sinclair lease."

Walsh attacked the legality of the lease, first, because the late President Harding was without authority to transfer control of the reserves from the navy to the interior department; second, because the leasing acts of Congress strictly prohibited either Fall or Denby from entering contracts for exchange of navy oil for storage tanks, and third, because the leases were consummated with bidders, as prescribed by law.

Order Called Illegal
"This order (executive) running counter, as it did, to the well-understood policy of Congress, merits more than a passing notice," he said. "Its legiti-mity ought to have been recognized by everyone connected in its promulgation. The idea that the president may transfer powers reposed in or duties imposed upon one cabinet officer to another is intolerable and indefensible."

Not only was the order illegal, Walsh said, but he held that the law prohibited leasing without competitive bids.

Arguments of Fall and Denby that, because of drainage conditions, the leases were good business for the government were denied, chiefly in connection with the Sinclair contract. Walsh said that even with a quarter of the oil drained away there would have been 22,000,000 barrels left in the ground.

"Your committee cannot believe a lease under which the government receives 6 per cent of the oil in the ground, and the lessee gets 94 per cent can possibly be in the interest of or just to the government," said Walsh. "Had the leases been awarded upon competitive bidding, there would have been no occasion to inquire whether they are or were not fair to the government."

TELLS NEED FOR AIDING INDUSTRY

Speakers Stress Importance Of Supporting Plans to Foster Growth

after which there were talks from the floor by A. C. Moore,
W. L. Twining, George R. Beaton,
A. T. Cowan and others.

Pictures Growth
President Merrick of the association, a man for twenty-five years in charge of credits with the "big five" Chicago packers, pictured the metropolis of Los Angeles radiating sixty miles from the harbor, and including within its territory over 2,000,000 people, a section of amazing population growth, yet with no corresponding industrial growth.

The speaker then outlined the functions of the Industrial Finance corporation created by the Greater Los Angeles association to foster industrial growth in southern California, taking up the task where the banks are forced by legal restrictions to leave off, making long-term loans and acting as a brokerage house in the floating of securities.

The lower production cost and lighter labor turnover on the west coast were stressed by Mr. Merrick, who declared that many industries wished to locate here, but were hampered by lack of capital, while many industries already here wished to expand and carry larger payrolls, but were likewise hampered by lack of capital. It is this situation, he said, that the Greater Los Angeles association, through the Industrial Finance corporation, aims to overcome.

Southland's Wealth

Rex B. Goodcell, the next speaker, traced the almost incredibly rapid development of this country from a land of sagebrush and cactus to a teeming metropolitan area of refinement and culture, with natural beauties and climate such as the world can offer the settler nowhere else. But only a definite number can be supported by agriculture, he stated, and the saturation point is near. There must now be industries and a payroll, to care for the 200,000 new population coming into southern California every year, or the marvelous growth will cease.

That the wealth is here Mr.
Goodcell definitely proved, by figures from the income tax records, showing that more income tax per capita is paid here than anywhere else in the country, and that 550,000 population has been added in the last three years.

The speaker then outlined the vast riches of this section in natural resources, such as cotton, leather, oil, iron and other raw products. These products are shipped back east to their markets, he said, an economic absurdity, when they could be manufactured cheaper and better right here at home, at a saving of 6000 miles of freight.

Jobs for Newcomers

With 65 per cent of our present industries built around the building operations that so thrive here, a very unhealthy condition was pictured by Mr. Goodcell, who declared that if building should stop, the "bubble" would burst. While eastern papers exaggerate the situation, he said, it is nevertheless serious. With 200,000 more people coming every year, something must be done at once to provide ample employment for all this growing population, and the speaker concluded by urging that the energy and will be found to buckle down and put over this big project.

Morgan Wood, who followed
Mr. Goodcell, stressed the great opportunity that exists, and urged that a stronger foundation must be supplied on which this gigantic superstructure of southern California development will rest more securely. He told the audience that Chicago was once regarded as a "boom" city, and had to straighten itself out some seven years ago.

A. E. Warmington, secretary of the Greater Los Angeles association, concluded the program with an admonition that a little straight thinking be induced in stating that, while not alarming, the situation needed a balance wheel, and that the association should have the support of every employer, employee and property owner. He then answered questions from the floor. The $25 admission to membership in the association is to be used for industrial advertisement and to defray the expenses of floating the $50-000,000 Industrial Finance corporation, he said, which, on the Growth of Industry Since Early Days Related by P. F. Conley

P. F. Conley, representing the United States Rubber company, was introduced as the speaker of the day at the Glendale Rotary club luncheon by David G. Croft, ton. He stated that Columbus found rubber among the West Indies, but not until 1839 when Goodyear discovered the art of vulcanizing did the product come into practical use.

Since then the industry has made great strides, according to the speaker, and rubber is raised scientifically in Java, Sumatra and Brazil and other tropical countries. It is not highly profitable as a commercial venture and although the sales run up to a billion dollars yearly, there is nothing made on tire manufacture.

A new luncheon place will be selected by Chairman P. L.
Hatch's committee, President J.
Herbert Smith of the club announced. The latter is leaving with Mrs. Smith for Toronto, Canada, to attend the meeting of Rotary International.

J. I. Wernette urged club members to support Baseball Day; R.
Ernest Tucker took up the matter of community band concerts;
and the following visiting members were introduced: Cliff
Thompson, Burbank; Tom Hayes, Monrovia, and J. Will Johnson of Pueblo, Colo., who is returning to his home after wintering here.

DEMONSTRATION OF LIE DETECTOR

High School Students Will Be Guests of U. C. S. B.
Next Saturday

LOS ANGELES, June 5.—Students of the Glendale Union high school will be the guests of the University of California, southern branch, Saturday and see Dr.
Hiram Edwards, criminologist, demonstrate the "lie detector" as one of the features of the high school-Alumni day program.

This will be one of several demonstrations of the engineering and science departments class work in the morning, it is announced. In the afternoon at 2:15 a Greek play, "Oedipus, King of Thebes," will be presented while at 2:45 a water carnival in the university plunge will see the aquatic co-eds sporting themselves in diving and swimming contests.

The Southern branch alumni will meet at 11 a. m., while the old normal school graduates will convene at 1 p. m., for their annual meetings.

At 4:45 a tea dansant in the Tower rooms will be an attraction for high school girls while a "Men's Do" will be held in the gymnasium with boxing and wrestling and gymnastic stunts on the program. Sandwiches will be served.

All fraternities and sororities will hold open house and the guests regally entertained, it is assured by the university authorities.

dent Coolidge today signed a Congressional resolution directing basis of 25,000 members, will be put over for 1 1/4 per cent, as contrasted with the customary 20 per cent charge for floating securities.

Speakers from the floor, both between speeches and following the program, thrashed out various angles of the project to their full satisfaction. A. C. Moore, associated with John C. Thorne of Los Angeles, a cordage manufacturer, outlined Mr. Thorne's findings with regard to the marvelous industrial opportunities offered in southern California.

A. T. Cowan declared that when the people of Glendale fully understand the real opportunity offered by the Greater Los Angeles association to help build a bigger, stronger southland, they would be leaders in the movement.

PLANS FOR FARM RELIEF DROPPED

Congress Abandons Bill as Coolidge Balks on Crop Buying Scheme

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Congress today abandoned any plans for direct farm relief legislation at this session. The last chance for such legislation vanished when President Coolidge refused the proposal of administration leaders in the House to put through a bill giving War Finance corporation authority to buy surplus American crops for export.

The president's opposition to the plan was carried to Congress by Frank W. Mondell, former majority floor leader in the House and now a director of the War Finance corporation. Representative Longworth, the administration leader, after talking with Mondell, announced that there was nothing else to do but abandon plans for relief legislation.

Drain on Treasury
Mr. Coolidge based his opposition on the ground that there would be a drain on the treasury of from $50,000,000 to $100,000-000 and that the government would be forced to bear losses in disposing of farm stocks overseas.

With the McNary-Haugen bill and other agricultural relief measures lost, farm bloc leaders today concentrated their efforts on a resolution directing the Interstate Commerce commission to revise the entire railroad rate structure, to reduce rates on farm products.

Upholds Legality of Passing Bonus Bill

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Although he is opposed to the soldiers' bonus as a matter of principle, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon declared today he believed Congress had a legal right to enact the bonus law.

His statement was made in connection with a suit filed here for an injunction to stop the bonus.
Mellon was named one of the defendants in the suit, which was brought by Benjamin Catchings, a New York lawyer.

DENIES WOMAN'S CHARGE

LOS ANGELES, June 5.—Denying that he attacked her, Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, had an answer on file here today to the $100,000 suit of Mrs. Mary Tenney, screen actress. Kearns answer asserts the suit was brought in an effort to exact money from him.

HUGE SUM IS COLLECTED IN FEES

Total of $5,687,179 Turned Into State Treasury by Motor Owners

SACRAMENTO, June 5.—Announcement that California has collected automobile licenses and fees totaling $5,687,179 since the registration year began was made today by Will H. Marsh, superintendent of the State Motor Vehicle department. Registration figures were given as follows:

Passenger cars, 987,776; pneumatic tired trucks, 119,465; solid tired trucks, 37,264; motorcycles, 9835; trailers, 10,918; grand total, 1,165,258.

Licenses issued to dealers, transfers and chauffeurs' registration were also classified: Auto dealers, 2602; motorcycle dealers, 69; trailer dealers, 20; hidden transfers, 96,369; regular transfers, 87,752; chauffeurs, 75,670.

Seeks More Revenue
Substitution of a regular weight fee for the present state registration fee of $3 on all automobiles is advocated by Marsh as a means of raising more money to finance highway building in California. The flat fee plan prescribed in the Motor Vehicle Act, passed by the last Legislature, would be thrown into the discard under the superintendent's plan.

"A straight weight fee of so much per hundred pounds," he says, "should be charged on all motor vehicles, regardless of type or classification. This would do

DEALERS TO GATHER AT HI-JINKS

Glendale Auto Agents Plan for Annual Outing on Wednesday, June 11

A big day and a bigger night is assured members of the Glendale Automobile Dealers' association and their guests next Wednesday, June 11, when for the second successive year they will hold their annual "Jinks" at Forest Home, a mountain resort above Redlands.

They will leave here at 12:30 o'clock sharp, from West Harvard street between Central avenue and Orange street.

Plan Banquet
This was decided at yesterday's noon luncheon of the association, held at the Egyptian Village on North Brand boulevard.

There at Forest Lawn, 6000 feet above sea level, they will partake of an elaborate banquet and spend the night festively, returning home the next morning. Approximately forty members and guests have already signified their intention to make the trip. Details for the big birthday party were worked out by a special jinks committee that met after the regular session.

Names Committee
The committee was appointed by President Lyman P. Clark of the association and comprises: C. H. Hunter, William Court, P. A. Kelley, W. A. Tanner and Don H. Packer.

Beautiful Girls In Beautiful Car

LAGUNA BEACH, GEM OF COAST CITIES, REACHED WITH EASE IN LINCOLN

Circular Route Takes Pleasure Seekers to Resorts Along Ocean, Through Pretty Canyon, Atop Cliff, By Missions

By A. S. HALL
Of The Evening News Staff.
There are so many beauty spots in Southern California that lie within reach of the motorist, that one need never worry about something different to see and some place different to go, yet the trip suggested this week by Jesse E. Smith, Lincoln and Ford dealer, at 115-125 West Colorado boulevard, takes the pleasure seeker to the gem of the coast—Laguna Beach.

The travelogue car was a Lincoln seven-passenger touring car, with Mr. Smith at the wheel. The route is circular, taking in several beach cities and resorts on the way to the artists' haven, returning way way of Anaheim, Fullerton and Whittier over the coast route, and Pasadena and Eagle Rock to avoid heavy traffic in the late afternoon in Los Angeles.

Doubtless many of the motor-reading public served by The Glendale Evening News have traveled parts of this route numerous times, but there is always something new and something different to see, regardless of the number of times it is traversed.

Long Beach First
Leaving Glendale, the travelogue party followed Glendale boulevard to Los Angeles, and then continued to Long Beach, where the first stop was made. A short time was spent along the Pike, watching the bathers as they played in the waves and the children romping in the sand. Hours could have been spent here, but the party was anxious to reach Laguna Beach.

Next on the route came Seal Beach, then Sunset Beach, next Huntington Beach and then Newport Beach and Balboa. Rugged coast lines made it necessary to leave the ocean at times, but during the greater portion of the journey from Long Beach to Balboa, the broad expanses of the ocean were visible, while the tang of salt was ever present in the air.

From Balboa the party headed toward Santa Ana, leaving behind the ocean for the time being. The trip to Santa Ana was two-fold in purpose, as Mr. Smith wished to call upon George Dunton, Ford and Lincoln dealer in that city, and to learn more about the famous beauty contest being staged in Santa Ana by the Santa Ana Lodge No. 1025, L. O. O. M., to pick Orange county's fairest woman to represent the community in the national beauty contest in New York.

READY MARKET FOR USED BUICKS

W. A. Tanner Gives Reasons Why Autoists Turn to Dependable Cars

The ready market that used Buicks find among motorists is explained by W. A. Tanner of Tanner & Hal, Ltd., South Brand boulevard and Maple avenue, local distributors, who says people buy used Buicks because of the fact that they realize and understand that a Buick which has been driven a few thousand miles still retains all the mechanical perfection and quality of manufacture that were built into it at the Buick factory.

"Experienced motorists," he claims, know that the mere fact of a Buick having been driven does not alter in the slightest degree the correctness of Buick design or the quality of Buick manufacture. In every vital point the used Buick meets the expectations and demands of the buyer. He sees in it sound value for his money. If this were not so there would not be so many used Buicks sold to persons of sound business judgment who study the matter from a purely business angle and who buy used Buicks in preference to new cars of a cheaper make, because the used Buicks yield them bigger returns for their investment.

"These people know that when they buy a new car of a cheaper make, they cannot expect to find in it the same quality that they

BUSINESS GROWS IN NEW LOCATION

Dealer Tells Why Packard Appeals to Motorists of Present Day

"Business in our new location has been much more encouraging than we hoped for when we moved in here," says W. H. Daniel of the Dixie Motor company, distributors of Packard and Gray cars, 1129-1131 South Brand boulevard.

"In large part this fact is explained by the growing realization that the Packard offers a value that stands unrivaled in the automotive world today, and by the knowledge that the first cost of a Packard covers practically all expenses in connection with the car beyond the daily upkeep for gasoline and oil. The in-built merit of the Packard is such that the owner can place his trust in it without question, depending on the car to deliver unhesitatingly just what he demands of it and still have plenty in reserve to meet emergencies.

"You can see just what this realization means when you look around at the steadily increasing numbers of Packards that are to be seen on the streets of Glendale and every other Southland city today."

find in a used Buick which they can buy for approximately the same price."

CHEVROLET AIDS VACATION PLANS

Motorist Is Independent of Hotels and Railways on Summer Trip

"The man who owns a car can laugh at the high price of vacations," says C. L. Smith, Chevrolet dealer, at Colorado and Orange streets, who has been checking up on the comparative cost of summer trips for the man who rides and the man who has to pay railroad fares and hotel bills.

"Take a man who hasn't got a car and start him off on a vacation. He must pay railroad fares, and if he plans on going any distance he is going to pay high for his transportation. He will have to have a place to stay, for he can't carry a camping outfit on his back; and he will have to stick to the railroad, for he can't go wandering off along any road that he might happen to fancy.

"On the other hand, the man with the car can follow his own desires in the matter of picking out his route. He can branch off and spend a day or two fishing in some quiet water; he can roll out his bed at night wherever he happens to find himself, and he has no schedules to tell him when to start and when to get off.

"And with a Chevrolet he is assured the cheapest motor transportation to be found anywhere. The Chevrolet is economical, sturdy and reliable, and it can go anywhere the road leads, carrying the whole family on a real outdoor vacation that beats the railroad and hotel kind all hollow."

CORRIGAN MAKES SELLING RECORD

Delivers Twenty-one Cars Inside Two Days from Glendale Agency

A record was established by R. E. Corrigan, local Dodge dealer, 116 West Colorado boulevard, when last week twenty-one new and used cars were delivered between Friday night and Sunday morning.

In making this announcement, Mr. Corrigan states that Dodge business throughout California was 21 per cent better this May than the same month a year ago, and that business is decidedly good.

The used car department reports it is difficult to supply the demand for rebuilt Dodge cars and that there will probably be none on hand by the end of the month.

Owing to the fact West Colorado boulevard is now torn up for repairs, Mr. Corrigan advises customers to reach his garage through the rear, by way of the vacant lot in the 300 block on South Brand boulevard, just beyond the fuel station. This lot serves Mr. Corrigan as a used car stand.

While it is true that the closing of Colorado boulevard will temporarily curtail business, Mr. Corrigan is satisfied that when the new and wider boulevard is finished, a greater volume of business than ever before will be the result, as this is a main artery between Pasadena and Hollywood.

PLAN LONG TOUR FOR MOTORISTS

Reo Pullman Blazes Trail for Tourists Through Eastern Region

The "Michigan Automobile Tours" annual trip for August, 1924, has been completely laid out and the entire route has been driven over by the general manager during the past few weeks. J. H. Brown of Battle Creek, Michigan, who originated these tours under the title of the Michigan Farmers' Automobile Tours, has announced that so many have wanted to register for the sixth annual tour from Michigan to New York and New England and return, that he has had to consider placing a limit on the number of cars included on the trip. "These trips have been attracting nationwide attention and the 1924 tour to New England already has cars registered from a number of states outside of Michigan. This will be the greatest automobile tour caravan ever seen in the United States. It is believed," says R. C. Hennessy, manager of the Glendale branch of the Reo Motor Car Co., of Southern California Inc., local dealers. "The Reo pullman in which Mr. Brown covered the route is an unusual one in many respects. The body and its complete equipment was designed and much of it personally constructed by Mr. Brown. Automobile experts in New York, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and other big cities claim this car is the finest and most complete of the kind in the entire country. It is mounted on a Reo Speed Wagon chassis. The body is 14 feet long, over 6 feet wide, and nearly 6 feet high. It is finished inside in solid oak, upholstered in tan Spanish leather, has two bedrooms, a combined living and dining room, bathroom and seat, bowl, lavatory shower, bath, folding tub and bath cabinet, dining table, wardrobe, writing desk with typewriter, gas cooking range, refrigerator, kitchen cabinet, kitchen sink, and electric fan. "It is interesting to know that this motor pullman car can be fully equipped with provisions, bedding, 20 gallons of water in the tank, 50 pounds of ice in the refrigerator, a full gas tank, and can then carry four passengers."

Franklin said three may keep a secret if two of them are dead.

PARTY TRAVELS IN LINCOLN TO SEA

companies, and the beach and cliffs have formed the location of more than one thriller or scenic film. Here it was that Jackie Coogan romped through "Captain January," while other pictures having a coast setting are made here.

An excellent view is obtained from the palisades, a comparatively easy drive from the city. Below lies Laguna, the beach, the bay and the canyon, while in the distance one can see for miles out on the ocean.

Instead of retracing the route to Santa Ana by way of Laguna Canyon, the travelogue party followed the dirt road on the top of the cliff past San Juan Capistrano point and San Juan Capistrano mountain to the San Diego-Los Angeles highway, striking it near Serra.

Motorcycle Climbs

This dirt road is not the best in the world, the travel party found, but it furnishes thrills, aplenty and scenery unsurpassed. The travelers, however, felt perfectly safe, knowing the Lincoln was under control at all times. One of the chief points of interest along this route is San Juan Capistrano mountain, where motorcycle climbs are held.

Following the main highway northward, the travelogue party reached San Juan Capistrano, where a visit was made to the famous mission from which the town derived its name. Portions of the ancient structure remain, but are fast giving way to the elements. The mission proper was razed by the earthquake of 1812 and many of the worshippers gathered within the adobe walls were killed.

After visiting the mission and looking over the quaint town, where adobe houses are more numerous than brick or frame buildings, and dark-eyed señoritas walk the dusty streets, the party returned to Santa Ana, where the fair contestants bade farewell to the travelers.

Follow Coast Route

The return trip followed the coast route through Anaheim, Fullerton and Whittier, and after crossing the San Gabriel river, three miles from Whittier, the travelogue party turned onto the San Gabriel boulevard. A brief stop was made at the San Gabriel mission and then the party continued on into Pasadena. From Pasadena the route was over Colorado street, across the Arroyo Seco bridge, through Eagle Rock and home again.

The few grades encountered on the trip served to prove the power concealed beneath the hood of the Lincoln touring car. The charm, comfort and easy riding qualities of the Lincoln were clearly demonstrated on the journey, and all members of the party agreed that the Lincoln touring car supplied by Mr. Smith is replete with refinements and conveniences for the driver and occupants.

PACKER AUTO CO. EMPLOYEES PICNIC

Baseball Game, Luncheon, Sports on Program at Griffith Park

The second annual picnic of the employees of the Packer Auto company's two establishments, Glendale and Burbank, was held at Griffith park last Sunday, and brought out an attendance of over ninety guests from among the staffs of the two houses and their families. Of course every one turned up in a Studebaker car, the kind that the company distributes in this territory.

The day started off with a ball game between the teams representing the sales and office force and the shops, and the former romped home in the lead with a score of 12 to 6.

In the afternoon other sports were on the card. Some one had brought along a set of horseshoes, and the rivalry was keen to see who could throw the most ringers, but so many experts showed up that it was impossible to keep a close tally on the shoes that were hung around the peg.

All of the luncheon that was served to the guests had been prepared by the families of Stephen C. Packer, head of the firm, and of Don H. Packer, and the variety of dainties served made a strong appeal to all of the guests, both old and young. The little ones who accompanied their parents to the picnic were made happy by gifts presented to them by Miss Doris Packer, and the spirit of loyalty and friendship that exists between Mr. Packer and his associates in his agencies was even more strongly cemented by the treat that he had provided for them.

Chorus—"By Babylon's Wave" (Gounod), directed by Mrs. Widdows.

Benediction—Rev. Leo C. Kline. Postlude—"Melody" (Sjorgren), by Miss Lila Litch.

The general public will be welcomed at the concert. A silver offering is to be taken.

D. A. R. PLANS TO ERECT HOME HERE

State Vice Regent Installs Newly Elected Officers At Annual Meet

work of Miss Ida D. Myers, the new regent.

Honor Vice-Regent

Honored guest yesterday was Mrs. Jesse Shreve of San Diego, state vice-regent, who came north specially to install the newly-elected officers of the Glendale chapter.

Preceding the installation the annual "White Breakfast" was served in the lower hall of the church.

It was most fitting that the national colors, red, white and blue, dominate the table decoration. Flat arrangements of red geraniums, white Shasta daisies and blue cornflowers extended down the centers of the long tables, while larger bouquets and American flags were added features of the decoration.

Smaller flags were favors on the plain white placecards. Mrs. Houston presided over the luncheon hour introducing Mrs. Shreve, who gave a brief word in greeting; Mrs. J. H. Ballagh of Glendale, national and state chairman of revolutionary relics; W. L. Jencks, a member of the Sons of the Revolution, who was the only man present. In responding to the introduction Mr. Jencks spoke on a subject very near the Daughters' hearts, that of democracy.

Patriotic Address In anticipation of the coming of Flag Day, June 14, a series of sketches on the flag and patriotism were read by Mesdames C. W. Houston, T. W. Preston, W. A. Saylor, S. C. Leppelman, H. O. Holbrook, Mabel Franklin Ocker, and Miss Ida D. Myers.

Later Mrs. S. C. Leppelman, recently honored by appointment as state vice-chairman of the correct use of the flag, read a poem, "Your Flag and Mine," by W. D. Nesbit. This was followed with a "Toast to the Flag," given by Miss Myers.

The afternoon's program opened with the impressive ritual written by the late Mrs. Braly.

In installing the officers Mrs. Shreve read the form used by the national chaplain in installing national officers. Officers installed were Miss Ida D. Myers, regent; Mrs. S. C. Leppelman, first vice-regent; Mrs. Mabel Franklin Ocker, second vice-regent; Miss Hazel White, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. A. Crawford, recording secretary; Mrs. W. A. Saylor, chaplain.

Mrs. W. G. Lyman, treasurer; Mrs. E. W. W. Hayward and Mrs. E. M. Kennedy, historian, were unable to be present.

Regent's Insignia Later Mrs. Houston was presented with her pin and in turn she presented Miss Myers with the regent's insignia.

The Daughters were interested to hear Mrs. Shreve speak briefly of plans for the coming year's work.

A medley of patriotic airs played by Mrs. Saylor was the final event of the meeting.

The next meeting will be on the first Wednesday in October.

NOTED ARTISTS WILL APPEAR AT SCHOOL TONIGHT

Unusual Talent Offered at Benefit Performance
by Commandery

With artists of international reputation on the program, as well as some of the best local and Los Angeles talent, the entertainment to be presented tonight at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of the Broadway High school by Glendale Commandery No. 53, Knights Templar, promises to be one of the best offered to a Glendale audience in some time.

All the numbers are of the highest class and no mediocre talent has been given a place on the program, according to W. W. Worley, chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the benefit. The doors will open at 7:30 and the curtain will rise on the first act promptly at 8:15. The Glendale High school orchestra of thirty pieces will offer selections before the performance.

The opening number will be an act of magic and mind reading by Professor Ryboldt, a professional magician and expert in the art of deception. This act will be followed by Calmon Luboviski, the great Russian violinist, who will play a selection by Sarasate and two by Kreisler.

Give Russian Play

Mr. Luboviski has appeared with the leading orchestras of Europe and America as soloist under many world-famous conductors, and is first violinist and organizer of the Russian String Quartet. He has many admirers among the music lovers of Glendale.

The fourth number will be "The Melting Pot," presented by A. B. Kachel, dramatic instructor in the Hollywood High school. Mr. Kachel has given plays in Glendale on previous occasions and has always been enthusiastically received. The drama he is presenting tonight links Russia and the United States in a story that has stirred hundreds of audiences over the United States.

The second internationally famous artist to appear will be Etienne Campana, who has been acclaimed by critical audiences in Europe, South America and the United States. During his grand opera career, which covers a period of eighteen years, he has appeared as baritone soloist a number of times with the Los Angeles Symphony orchestra and is, therefore, well-known in Glendale.

Quartet to Sing

Lois Naudain will follow Campana in a toe dance called "Vanity Fair." Miss Naudain is an assistant teacher in the Edith Lindsay School of Dancing and during Miss Lindsay's absence in Europe has taken charge of all classes and private lessons, both in Glendale and Hollywood.

The final musical treat of the program will be given by the Orpheus Four, the quartet of the far-famed Orpheus Club of Los Angeles. The quartet, composed of Messrs. Glass, Campbell, Adams and Dudley, have made many appearances in Glendale and never fail to please with their harmony numbers.

Have Comedy Sketch

Another lighter feature of the program is the comedy sketch, "He Said and She Said," which will be presented by four players from the Los Angeles Conservatory of Music. The cast will be: Enid, Sylvia Florian; Felix, Rollo Bednarz; Mrs. Packard, Cortesia Ord; and Diana, Virginia Barber. The concluding number will be a reading, "Miantownna," by Mrs. W. G. Barber, accompanied on the piano by Grace Caldwell Bennett. This is an Indian legend and will be given in costume.

The benefit is being put on by the Commandery in order to raise funds to send the drill team to the grand convocation next year, where it will compete for honors with teams from all over the United States. The team that will make the trip to Seattle is composed of thirty members and Commander T. D. Watson, and Owen C. Emery and E. O. Kiefer, guards.

POPULAR COUPLE WED AT SUNLAND

Miss Mary Louise McNabb Is Bride of Angeleno at Quiet Ceremony

SUNLAND, June 5.—Miss Mary Louise McNabb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. McNabb, of Sunland, was married Wednesday, May 28, to Harvey Raymond Eberhart of Los Angeles.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. H. L. Laughlin, 2358 West 30th street, Los Angeles. Rev. Martin Boulder officiated. Fifty relatives and close friends were present.

The bride wore a gown of white crepe satin, trimmed with pearls, and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Mrs. Laughlin attended the bride as matron of honor, wearing a gown of Nile green georgette. Mr. Laughlin acted as best man.

Following the wedding ceremony an informal reception was held. The bride couple departed for a honeymoon trip to San Francisco. On their return they will make their home at Kenwood avenue and Beverly boulevard, Los Angeles.

The bride, as Miss McNabb, was a favorite with the young people of Sunland, where she attended school, graduating from the Monte Vista grammar school.

DEFICIENCY BILL PASSED BY HOUSE

Large Appropriations Made for Various Features
by Lower Body

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Carrying an appropriation of $159,000,000, the urgent deficiency bill was passed by the House yesterday afternoon. Of this amount, $131,000,000 is appropriated for the soldiers' bonus; $8,200,000 to increase the coast guard to combat rum running; $3,500,000 to stamp out the hoof and mouth disease; $2,500,000 for finishing the scrapping of the navy under disarmament conference; and $500,000 to enable the state department to put the new immigration law into effect.

MRS. CHRYSLER TO MAKE HOME HERE

Auto Magnate's Mother Buys Residence in Glendale;
Coming July 1st

The announcement that Mrs. Katherine Chrysler, the mother of Walter P. Chrysler, head of the Maxwell Motors corporation and manufacturer of the Chrysler Six, is to make her home in Glendale, is made by Lyman P. Clark, of the Glendale Motor Car Co., 124 West Colorado street, Glendale distributor for the Maxwell and Chrysler cars.

Mrs. Chrysler, who was here with her son early this year when the latter was organizing his California agencies, was induced, largely through the efforts of Mr. Clark, to purchase a modern residence on West Lomita avenue, into which she expects to move by July 1, when the renovations that are now being carried out are completed.

"It took a lot of work to beat the competition of the agents in other Southern California cities," says Mr. Clark. "Every one of them wanted Mr. Chrysler to become interested in his own particular town, by reason of its being the home of his mother. But Glendale's advantages as a home town turned the scale, and not only will Glendale be the home of Mrs. Chrysler but it is practically assured that Walter P. Chrysler himself will spend as much time as possible here each winter with his mother."

The standing of Walter P. Chrysler in the automotive industry of the United States is a leading one, due entirely to his accomplishments in his chosen field as an executive. His biggest feat, say those who know him best, was in taking hold of the Maxwell corporation when that concern was within measurable distance of failure, burdened with debts to the tune of $29,000,000, and within three years pulling the firm out of debt, paying off the last installment before it became due, and placing it among the leaders in the industry.

Los Angeles Awarded 1925 Shrine Meeting

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 5.—John N. Zebrell, Jr., Khedive temple, Norfolk, Va., was elected imperial outer guard of the Shrine yesterday afternoon. James E. Chandler, Ararat temple, Kansas City, Mo., succeeded Conrad V. Dykeman, Kismet temple, Brooklyn, N. Y., to the imperial potentate's chair.

Los Angeles was chosen as the 1925 meeting place of the Shrine, and the dates for the convention were set as May 26, 27 and 28.

SUNLAND NOTES

SUNLAND, June 5.—Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Foster recently entertained a party of forty friends at their Sunland home. The guests were fellow employees of the Glazier Cigar company of Los Angeles, where Mr. Foster is employed. Refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Homer Rice were among the Kiwanis people who went to Colton for the charter presentation of that club.

George Schoenfeld's new residence is nearing completion. E. W. Sohler is also building a home of stone and concrete on Buckley drive.

A residence is to be built by Mrs. Johnson of Los Angeles at the corner of Los Angeles street and St. James drive.

J. C. Krueger has planned a home on Manzanita drive.

Strassburg, France, has become noted for its goose liver pies, or pate de foie gras. The geese are raised in the streets.

away with much trouble now caused by the flat fee and would be a more equitable means of raising revenue.

"I am also heartily in favor of the principle of the gasoline tax, but I have not yet endorsed the movement to secure an increase of the present rate of 2 cents a gallon. A showing that additional revenue for road maintenance purposes is needed has not yet been made by the State Highway commission."

Want Clean Plates

Beginning this week, members of the State Highway patrol will direct their energies toward eliminating illegible and unreadable automobile plates.

It has come to the attention of the Motor Vehicle department of the State Highway patrol that many motorists are violating the law by permitting dirt and grease to collect on them to such a degree as to render them illegible. Officers have been instructed to stop all such violators and compel them to adjust or clean their plates immediately. If they fail to comply with the orders they will be handed a citation and ordered to appear in court.

Authorization

The officers will act under authority of Section 43-B of the California Motor Vehicle Act, which says:

"Every number plate shall at all times be securely fastened to the vehicle to which it is assigned so as to prevent the plate from swinging and at a minimum distance of sixteen inches from the ground, in a position to be clearly visible and shall be maintained free from foreign materials and in a condition to be clearly legible."

"The dirty or hidden license plate is the favorite trick of the criminal driver in evading the law," said Chief Inspector A. C. Harder today. "He can knock down and kill helpless persons, ruthlessly commit a robbery or break the speed laws and ride blithely away knowing that the numbers on his plates are concealed to such a degree that they cannot be read. There is no excuse for dirty or hidden plates."

intriguing trout will have an opportunity. Others will seek out the lair of the galloping dominoes, while aquatic sports will provide diversion for still others.

All who were on last year's party are expected to repeat, and it is believed that the new members of the association will relish this opportunity for getting better acquainted with their fellow dealers.

Meets Truckman's Needs

The Ford ton truck, equipped with all-steel body and cab, screen sides and canopy top, is a haulage unit that meets a wide range of requirements.

Screen sides and canopy top are now being supplied by the Ford Motor Company as additional equipment for the new Ford one-ton truck equipped with all-steel body and cab.

Since its introduction a few months ago, the new Ford haulage unit has steadily gained in popularity among truck users throughout the country. With the addition of screen sides and canopy top its utility is greatly extended and the uses to which it may be adapted become wider than ever, including almost every delivery service demand.

With the screen sides and top the truck has a loading space of approximately 114 cubic feet. The body is four feet wide, 7 feet, 2 inches long, and has a loading height of four feet.

Truck users everywhere are rapidly turning to the use of the one-ton truck as the most economical and efficient. The new equipment now available with the Ford truck provides not only a complete haulage unit, but also gives the truck user several body combinations to choose from and permits him to make selections which are best suited to his particular requirements.

LABOR TROUBLES AT SAN QUENTIN

One Hundred Members of
I. W. W. Go on Sympathy
Strike at Prison

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., June 5.—Refusing to work because two of their comrades had been placed in solitary confinement, nearly 100 members of the I. W. W. imprisoned here went on strike yesterday.

The recalcitrant prisoners were ordered into solitary confinement by prison authorities where they will be held until ready to return to work.

Joseph Kullman and John Gibson were the two whose solitary confinement precipitated the strike. No disorder accompanied the strike.

Auto Racer to Enter Car In Ascot Events

TUJUNGA, June 5.—Bert Spencer of Tujunga will take the Hamilton & Home Blue Bird racer to Ascot for a try at the prize money in one of the races to be held there next Sunday.

This will be the third start to be made by the racing car built in the Tujunga garage, the first two bringing out slight defects that have since been remedied. In the last start the Blue Bird finished second in the elimination trials, but developed ignition trouble and was forced out of the Invitational race, in which it was entered.

Gowns by Mother

The charm of the gowns of the bride and her maids is very dear to Miss Pfeiffer's heart for they were artistic creations of Mr. Wilson's mother, who had the happiness of not only making these gowns but the entire trousseau of her new daughter-in-law. Mrs. Whitehill assisted Mrs. Wilson in designing and making the various gowns.

For the reception later at the Whitehill home, guests were received by Mesdames Whitehill, M. B. Wilson and Frank Weetman. Mrs. Schumayer and daughter Miss Elsie Pfeiffer, who came west to attend the wedding, were members of the company received.

White and green were the colors emphasized in the decorations of the Whitehill home. Beautiful white spring flowers and varied greenery were used in the various rooms.

Take Northern Trip

Of great interest was the artistically decorated bridal table, on which the bride's cake occupied the place of honor.

At a late hour a bridal luncheon was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson left after the reception for a trip north. For traveling Mrs. Wilson wore a chic sport suit in green and white with hat to match.

Upon return the young couple will make their home at 629 North Orange street, Glendale.

Attended School Here

Both Mr. and Mrs. Wilson have countless friends in Los Angeles and Glendale, who are wishing them great happiness.

The Wilson family came to Glendale fourteen years ago from Ashland, Oregon. The son attended the Glendale Union High school, graduating in 1915. Shortly after his graduation he became associated with the Title Insurance and Trust company, of which he is now assistant secretary. Mrs. Wilson has also been associated with the same organization, and the romance grew out of a friendship begun in their work together.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE CATERPILLAR

One day when Uncle Wiggily was sitting alone in his hollow stump bungalow, thinking where he might hop to so that he could have an adventure, all of a sudden the bunny gentleman heard a queer little scratching sound at the front door.

"Hum," he whispered, twinkling his pink nose. "Perhaps that is Charlie or Arabella Chick, scratching for something to eat. I'll go out and say 'hello' to them."

But when Uncle Wiggily opened the door he saw neither of the chicken children. Still the funny little scratching sound went on just the same.

"Is any one here?" called the rabbit gentleman.

"Yes, I am," answered a soft voice.

"Who are you—I can't see any one," said Mr. Longears.

"I am Mrs. Fur, the caterpillar," was the answer. "Look down at the corner of the step and you'll see me. I have been trying to crawl up to tickle your front door for the last hour, but I have to go so slowly that it might have gotten dark before I arrived. However, now that you have come to the door, it is all right."

Uncle Wiggily looked down on the steps and saw a very respectable brown caterpillar lady, wearing a green leaf bonnet tied under her chin.

"How do you do, Mrs. Fur," said the bunny gentleman, making a low and polite bow to the caterpillar lady. "I haven't the pleasure of knowing you, but I am glad to see you just the same."

"Well, I feel as if I knew you, for I hear you are a friend of my cousin, Mrs. Crawl, the movie worm," went on Mrs. Fur.

"Oh, yes, I met Mrs. Crawl the other day," said Uncle Wiggily, as he remembered how he had helped the worm lady move, with her peanut van of furniture. "But I didn't know she was your cousin."

"Yes, we are first cousins," was the answer, and I have come to visit her. I heard that you had taken her to live with you."

"Oh, no," cried Uncle Wiggily. "You are mistaken! I met the movie worm when she was moving and I helped her get to her new hole in the ground. I suppose some one saw me carrying her along and thought I had brought her to my bungalow. But I didn't. Mrs. Crawl lives in a hole at the foot of the pine tree, about fifty hops from here."

"Fifty hops—fifty of your hops. I suppose you mean," sighed Mrs. Fur, the caterpillar lady. "Oh, dear! It will take me a month to crawl that far, and I did so want to see my cousin!"

"Nothing is easier," said Uncle Wiggily. "I will put you in my pocket and hop to Mrs. Crawl's hole with you. Fifty hops are nothing to me. I often take as many as a thousand hops in a day. I'll carry you."

"You are very kind," murmured the caterpillar, and she cuddled up snugly in Uncle Wiggily's paw as he picked her up to put in his pocket. Then, carrying Mrs. Fur, Uncle Wiggily started to hop to the hole house where he had helped the movie worm move a few days before.

The rabbit had not hopped very far before, all of a sudden, he felt something tickling his neck.

"Bzz!" exclaimed the bunny. "What's this?" Looking he saw Mrs. Fur crawling up his coat collar.

"I just came out to ask if we were at my cousin's house yet," said the caterpillar. "I am so anxious to see her."

"No, we aren't there yet," answered Uncle Wiggily. "Get back in my pocket." So the caterpillar lady crawled back in his pocket. But pretty soon Uncle Wiggily felt something tickling his left ear.

"Are we there yet?" asked a soft voice, and there was Mrs. Fur, out again.

"No, we aren't there yet," said the bunny. "I'm hopping along as fast as I can. Get back in my pocket. So Mrs. Fur crawled back in his pocket. But pretty soon Uncle Wiggily felt something tickling his right ear. "Zippy!" he cried with a shiver and shake.

"Are we there yet?" asked a soft voice, and there was Mrs. Fur, out again.

"Oh, will you please go back in my pocket and stay there," cried Uncle Wiggily, as politely as he could. "You tickle me so I want to sneeze." Mrs. Fur was just going to crawl back in the rabbit's pocket, but, all of a sudden, out of the bushes popped the Woolly Wolf.

"Now I have you!" howled the Wolf to Uncle Wiggily, as he caught the rabbit. But before the bad chap could bite the bunny, Mrs. Fur, the caterpillar lady, crawled out of the rabbit's pocket, and she crawled down the back of the Wolf's neck. "Oh, something is tickling me! Oh, I've got to sneeze! Oh, stop tickling!" howled the Wolf. "Wishka!"

Then he sneezed so hard that he sneezed the caterpillar off his neck back into Uncle Wiggily's pocket. And the Wolf sneezed again, turning a somersault and bumping his nose so hard that tears came into his eyes. Then he couldn't see to bite the rabbit, and Uncle Wiggily hopped safely away, taking the caterpillar lady to her cousin, the movie worm, and the two had a good time together. They thanked the rabbit very much, and the bunny twinkled his pink nose at them and felt very happy because he had helped.

And if the crabapple tree doesn't pinch the hands of the clock when they are trying to feed oranges to the goldfish, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the June bug.

Poems That Live

MY CREED
I hold that Christian grace abounds
Where charity is seen; that We climb to heaven 'tis on the rounds
Of love to men.

I hold all else named plety
A selfish scheme, a vain pretense;
Where center is not—can there be circumference?

This more I hold, and dare Affirm where'er my rhyme may go—
Whatever things be sweet or fair,
Love makes them so.

Whether it be the lullabies
That charm to rest the nursing child,
Or the sweet confidence of sighs
And blushes made without a word.

Whether the dazzling and the flush
Of softly sumptuous garden bowers,
Or by some cabin door a bush
Of ragged flowers.

'Tis not the wide phylactery,
Nor stubborn fast, nor stated prayers,
That makes us saints; we judge the tree
By what it bears.

And when a man can live apart
From works, on theologic trust,
I know the blood about his heart
Is dry as dust.

WHO WILL BE STAR?

Hundreds of letters containing suggestions for the title role of "Peter Pan" are pouring into Herbert Brenon's office in the Paramount studio in Hollywood. Since the announcement that Brenon was to produce Sir James Barrie's fantasy for the screen was first made, the director has received communications from the four quarters of the globe. More than 500 players have been named by the various letters. Some of the players are well-known screen figures. Some are famous on the stage. Still others are players of only local fame.

HIRE REAL GYPSIES

A band of gypsies has been added to the cast of "His Hour," the Elinor Glyn story which King Vidor is filming for the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. Real gypsies were hired for a banquet scene supposed to have taken place in the home of Grizko Milaslavski, a Russian prince. Grizko, in ordinary life, is John Gilbert, who is playing the leading male role opposite Aileen Pringle.

'HE WHO GETS SLAPPED'

Victor Seastrom and Carey Wilson have decided to change the locale of Leonid Andreiev's "He Who Gets Slapped" from Russia to France. Wilson is adapting the Russian play to the screen, for Seastrom to direct. The play, originally set in a Russian circus, will be moved bodily down the coast of Europe to France. Otherwise, the story will be untouched. Lon Chaney has been signed to play the title role.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 5.—The girls of today are not "going to the dogs"; so Dr. J. R. McCain, president of Agnes Scott College, who for years has come in close contact with girls in all walks of life, said recently.

Women will not stop having children, he said, although he does expect a slight decrease in marriages during the next generation.

The women of tomorrow will be better prepared to give her husband that companionship which he deserves, Dr. McCain stated, and it will not be in the form of tea-table gossip. Her breakfast-table conversation will be more enlightening than the newspaper which the husband now grabs, and it may be that her interpretation of the day's news will prove far more beneficial than editorials which are prepared on the cause and effect of daily events.

In addition to this, the president said, the girl of tomorrow will not come into this world wishing she were a boy, as has been the case for countless years. So desirable will be her position in life that she will not be envions of possibilities now afforded those of the male sex.

The world is going through an evolution as far as the women are concerned, according to him, and woman will emerge much the better for it.

Dr. McCain admitted that he was "old fashioned" enough not to approve bobbed hair and certain styles which girls and women now persist in wearing, but he pointed out that these characteristics are pretty superficial and have no meaning whatever as to the girl herself.

And the girl of tomorrow will be better prepared to fight the battles of life from a physical point of view. He said:

"Little girls, in rompers and with short hair, are developing a degree of freedom in exercise and in growth that only boys have had."

"The clothing of young women has never been so loose and light as now. Sex hygiene is being rationally taught by the better colleges and high schools for girls."

And so, if you are worrying over the woman of tomorrow, just forget it, advises Dr. McCain.

From Book Of Life

RICH LITTLE POOR BOYS

"How were it if we surmised, that for a man gifted with natural vigor, with a man's character to be developed in him, more especially if in the way of Literature, as Thinker and Writer, it is actually, in these strange days, no special misfortune to be trained up among the Uneducated classes, and not among the Educated; but rather of two misfortunes the smaller?"

Thomas Carlyle asks the question in one of his essays, on Corn-Law Rhymes.

"For all men, doubtless, obstructions abound; spiritual growth must be hampered and stunted, and has to struggle through with difficulty, if it does not wholly stop." He grants too, that, for a mediocre character, the continual training and tutoring, from language-masters, dancing masters, posture-masters of all sorts, hired and volunteers, which a high rank in any time and country assures, there will be produced a certain superiority, over the corresponding mediocre character of a low rank; thus we perceive the vulgar Do-nothing, as contrasted with the vulgar Drudge, is in general a much prettier man; with a wider, perhaps clearer outlook into the distance; in innumerable superficial matters, however it may be, he is deeper, he has a manifest advantage.

"But, with the man of uncommon character, again, in whom a germ of irrepresible Force has been implanted, and will sink itself into some sort of freedom, altogether the reverse may hold."

"For such germs, too, there is, undoubtedly enough, a proper soil where they will grow best, and an improper one where they will grow worse. True also, where there is a will, there is a way; where genius has been given, a possibility, a certainty of its growing is also given."

"Yet often it seems as if the injudicious gardening and manuring were worse than none at all; and killed what the inclemencies of blind chance would have spared."

We find accordingly that few Fredericks or Napoleons, indeed more since the Great Alexander, who unfortunately drank himself to death too soon for proving what lay in him, were nursed up with an eye to their vocation; mostly with an eye quite the other way, in the midst of isolation and pain, destitution and contradiction. Nay, in our own times, have we not seen two men of genius, a Byron and a Burns, they both by mandate of Nature, struggle and must struggle towards clear Manhood, stormily enough, for the space of six-and-thirty years; yet only the gifted Ploughman can partially prevail therein: the gifted Peasant must toil and strive, and shoot out in wild efforts, yet die at last, in Boyhood, with the promise of his Manhood still but announcing itself in the distance.

"Truly, as once written, 'It is only the antichoke that will not grow except in gardens; the acorn is cast carelessly abroad into the wilderness, yet on the wild soil it nourishes itself, and rises to be an oak.' All woodmen, moreover, will tell you that that fat manure is the ruin of your oak; likewise that the thinner and wilder your soil, the tougher, more iron-textured is your timber—though unhappily also the smaller."

"So, too, with the spirits of men; they become pure from their errors by suffering for them; he who has battled, were it only with Poverty and hard toil, will be found a stronger man, more expert, than he who could stay at home from the battle, concealed among the provision-wagons, or even not unwisely 'abiding by the stuff.'"

In which sense an observer, not without experience of Carlyle's time, said: "Had I a man of clearly developed character (clear, sincere within its limits) of insight, courage and real applicable force of head and of heart, to search for and not a man of luxuriously distorted character, and for insight and applicable force, speculation and plausible show of force,—it were rather among the lower than among the higher classes that I should look for him."

Jury Acquits Driver In Auto Murder Case

LOS ANGELES, June 5.—The first attempt in Los Angeles to prosecute an automobile death case on a murder complaint was recorded today as a failure. After deliberating five hours a jury returned a verdict of manslaughter against J. J. Kelly, who drove an automobile which struck and fatally injured Mrs. Sara E. Joy.

Many File Petitions In Bankruptcy Court

LOS ANGELES, June 5.—John Robert Jenkins, Pasadena, yesterday filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States district court, listing his liabilities at $22,409 and his assets at just $697. Yesterday fourteen petitions in bankruptcy were filed by residents of the San Joaquin valley, five of which were from Fresno.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D.
Author of Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories

For Summer Months

The illustration shows charming frocks for summer wear. Crepes, both plain and printed, are featured this summer. The three examples displayed here are proving popular, it is declared. Seldom does one pattern constitute a costume. It is almost always combined with something else.

ANSWERS TO MOTHERS

Mrs. B.—You must take your little two-year old girl to an orthopedic surgeon, if her legs are bowed as you say they are. She probably needs braces. While a moderate amount of bowing will correct itself, as a child grows older, providing the diet, etc., are right, so much bowing as you say she has, probably will not.

No, it is not usual for teeth to erupt before five months of age, but occasionally babies will have them at the fifth month and sometimes babies are born with teeth. The time varies for the eruption of teeth. In general, the first tooth is cut at five or six months; but perfectly normal babies will sometimes not develop them until they are 12 or 13 months old. The average child at the age of 2½ years old has its 20 baby teeth. So you can see that practically every baby, from six months to 2½ years, is cutting teeth continuously.

Babies should cut their teeth without any trouble. About 10 per cent are fussy and may lose their appetites temporarily. Disturbances should not be blamed on teething until other things are ruled out. Occasionally teething may be difficult and the gums may be swollen and tender, and very rarely they may have to be lanced. Rubbing the gum with a piece of clean gauze dipped in boracic solution (one teaspoon to the pint of water), or rubbing them with the clean handle of a spoon may give some relief. As soon as the teeth come in, they should be brushed with a soft brush, and when there are several teeth, a standard tooth paste can be used. Up to that time, nothing but plain water should be used. It is just as important that the temporary teeth receive dental care as it is for the permanent teeth, and the child should be taken to the dentist after its teeth are all in, at least every six months, so that any tiny cavities which have developed can be filled without pain.

There is a greenish stain which sometimes comes on the temporary teeth, even when normal home care is given, and the dentist will take this off. Washing teeth after each meal and rinsing

I have talked to you today about the dental and cleansing care of the teeth, but the most important fact in the development of good teeth is the diet of the mother before the baby comes and the diet of the child after birth. We will go into that phase of the question in another paper.

Average Time Eruption of Teeth
Deciduous or Temporary (20)—Two lower central incisors, 9 to 12 months; 2 upper incisors, 8 to 12 months; 2 lower lateral incisors, 9 to 12 months; 4 anterior molars, 12 to 15 months; 4 canines (upper, the "eye" teeth; lower, the "stomach" teeth), 14 to 20 months; 4 posterior molars, 20 to 36 months.

At 1 year the child should have 6 teeth; at 18 months it should have 12; at 2 years it should have 16; at 2½ to 3 years it should have 20 teeth.

Permanent Teeth (32)—Four first molars, 6 years; 8 incisors (replace temporary incisors), 7 to 9 years; 8 bicusps (replace temporary molars), 9 to 10 years; 4 canines (replace temporary canines), 12 to 15 years; 4 second molars, 12 to 15 years; 4 third molars ("wisdom" teeth), 17 to 25 years.

The molars are back of the bicusps.

"What is the latest covering for beds in the daytime?" writes a reader friend who lives on a farm and does not often get in to city shops.

The popular style of bed covering today is the two-piece set. The larger piece is a square measuring two and one-half yards long and two and one-quarter yards wide; this covers the entire bed, going under the pillows. The other piece of this two-piece set consists of a long, narrow strip of the same material, measuring two and one-quarter yards long and 27 inches wide; this long strip is laid over both pillows and hangs down on either side of the bed a short distance. The edges of these two pieces may be finished in any desired manner, but the most popular finish is scalloping.

And now comes the question of what material to use in making them. This of course depends upon the general decoration of the bedroom, and also upon the amount of money which the housekeeper wishes to expend.

In a bedroom which is richly furnished, for instance, a more or less "fancy" bed set is required. To give an example, let us suppose that this bedroom is decorated with a decided French note—lace glass curtains, silk overdrapes, gold-lace drop-light shades and scrap basket, and lace runners on bureau and dressing table; in this case, a file-lace two-piece bed set over a silk lining would not be too elaborate, or a two-piece set made entirely of silk.

But most of us have simpler bedrooms—with ruffled muslin glass curtains, linen or cretonne overdrapes, white or cream embroidered bureau runners (or even cretonne runners) and a general tone of simplicity rather than of "frilliness." In such a bedroom as this, we may have an all-cretonne bed set, an unbleached muslin bed set decorated with French knots or with cretonne bands applied on to suit the individual taste of the home-maker, or simply a plain, white or ecru linen bed set.

Yet there is an even simpler type of two-piece set which is used. It is admirably adapted to the use of the woman who must put economy of money and labor before all other considerations. I refer to the new seersucker bed sets. They may be laundered easily, and they are simple to make because their only decoration is a colored scalloping which runs completely around the edges of both pieces.

FASHIONABLE HAT

PARIS, June 5.—If your summer hat is of thin black straw with a drooping brim; if it has three or four very big and very bright flowers of different colors mashed closely against the crown and above all if it has a lead wire in the brim so that the shape may be altered at will, it's a fashionable hat.

Rinaldo Jacini, aged 80, is the oldest member of the pontifical household in Rome. He has served five popes as coachman.

By MME. LISBETH

Crepes and more crepes are shown for all styles of late spring and summer frocks. Crepes printed, crepes plain, but always lovely. And seldom does one pattern constitute a costume. It is almost always combined with something else. A plain color is trimmed with bandings of plain in another color or with printed material. A printed crepe is given distinction by trimming of a plain color emphasizing a tone in the printed goods.

Three examples of what I have been saying are shown here. The figure on the left is wearing a very simple, informal suit of white canton crepe banded with two shades of dull green. The off-the-face hat worn with it is supposedly of green trimmed with white—reversing the order of the frock—and shows the white braid and applique quite elaborately used.

White canton crepe is again used in the central figure—but with what a difference. The crepe is finely pleated, the skirt plain with a narrow banding at the hem of red, also pleated. The blouse is cut to resemble a square-cut coat jacket worn over a red blouse. To further enhance the effect the white pleated crepe of the "jacket" is edged with a narrow fancy braiding. The matching red scarf also has an edging of the braid.

A frock of printed crepe is shown on the right. Blue and black is the color scheme, with bandings of the blue. The unusual feature of this frock is the headgear worn by the model, which is a "bandana" matching the frock.

Heart and Home

By MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

A STORY OF SACRIFICE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I cannot resist writing a few lines. I have seen so many troubles brought to you. I can't say that mine are exactly troubles and yet I have many heartaches that no one realizes, so here goes my story:

When I was 17 my father was paralyzed and it was necessary for me to take care of him—which I did willingly, but it kept me closely at home for over eight years. Then my father died and mother became an invalid in a short time and all the other children were married. So it was my lot to be nurse again.

I am glad that God gave me the strength and health to take care of them, but now, when I am 30, my family love to tease me and call me an "old maid."

Now, they don't know they hurt me or that I would love to have a home of my own, even though they say I'm too old fashioned and no one will have me.

I read and try to keep up with the times and try to dress neatly, but not beyond my means; but of course, don't bob my hair or go to extremes in dress, nor dance, or visit public bathing places, though I don't mean to be narrow-minded. I just try to do right and hope maybe some day to meet someone who has the same ideas on these questions.

You see, the ones I grew up with have drifted away and married and I see so much about mothers-in-law and divorcees that I can't worry too much. But those of you who read these letters and have friends who are "old maids," don't tease them. Maybe they have been situated as I, with no opportunity to say yes or no.

I'm going to try to live such a useful life that maybe some day my folks will realize what I have been to them. Now, dear Mrs. Thompson, I feel better.

OLD-FASHIONED GIRL

Ever since the world began there have been those who have sacrificed themselves in order that the rest of a large family might have what they were voluntarily denying themselves. And ever since the world began there has been an awful lack of appreciation on the part of those benefitting. But they don't mean it. They don't realize. Be sure that when your prince comes—and 30 is young yes, young enough for hair bobbing and every sort of a gay and good time—he will find this precious thing in you that they can't see, and you will be so much richer for it all, even in your own consciousness, that you will not begrudge them the patient unselfish years, not even their little fun about the "old maid."

BROWN EYES: It never pays to cater to jealousy in a boy. Have as many boy friends as you want because you are too young to settle down to one boy merely because he has a jealous nature. Speak to him as you always have and I think you will find that he is glad to make up. It was very small of him to act so because you went bicycle riding with some one else. Have your fun as you want to regardless of his jealousy. He may think that he is in love with you, but love at so early an age means little. By the time he is

CHILD'S PARTY FROCK

NEW YORK, June 5.—The very little girl when dressed for a party, is exquisitely dressed these days. She wears, for example, a little georgette frock in pale blue over a silk slip in deep rose. The yoke of the frock is round and plain and merely touched with embroidered roses. The deep hem is covered with little petal tabs, daintily shirred.

KNITTED SILK SUITS

NEW YORK, June 5.—Among the lovely sports suits here today, knitted silk is pre-eminent. One of these has a sweater coat of lemon and white squares and a skirt in lemon with, here and there, a large white square to relieve the monotony.

SPANISH MOTIF

NEW YORK, June 5.—Just why a fiesta scene should be lightly embroidered across one side of a handkerchief is something difficult to figure out. But such a scene in lavender and green on a yellow silk handkerchief is part of the Spanish influence just now.

WEAR RED SHOES

NEW YORK, June 5.—Who said that colored shoes were going out? The vogue for a touch of red has brought red shoes into favor with many women who wear them today to set off a costume in which otherwise the red would pass unheeded.

ready to marry you will probably find yourself in love with some one else and entirely forgotten by him long before. It is better not to give a boy a birthday present unless you are engaged to him. You might write him a note wishing him a happy birthday, however.

Boston still holds an annual workhorse parade.

Beauty Chats

BEAUTIFYING SLEEP

No woman can keep her looks and her health if she goes for a long period without the proper amount of sleep. Most people need eight hours, nervous women nine, very healthy, phlegmatic people, seven. Alas, those who need nine hours are the very ones who find it hardest to get to sleep by any hour likely to give them more than seven or six.

Do you get enough? It's hard to give advice about getting to sleep for what makes one person drowsy keeps another wide awake. Drinking hot milk or hot chocolate is supposed to send one off; personally, I lie awake hours after such a drink, as both these are stimulating to me. Tea is both relaxing and stimulating; it puts some to sleep, keeps others up. Yet eating or drinking at bedtime is a good thing, especially if the drink be hot, for it draws the blood from the head to the stomach. If cocoa, milk or tea stimulate, try plain, hot water with a cracker at bedtime.

It is the same with a hot bath. Most people say they can sleep better for one just before bedtime, as the heat relaxes them. But some find it stimulating, like a hot drink. You must experiment, and find out what your special, nervous temperament needs. Don't try to force sleep. Sleep is the most stubborn mule that was ever known. It will not be forced. If it is hard to sleep, do as little brain work as possible an hour before bedtime, spend as many evenings quietly or frivolously as possible, save your work and worries for the day. Go to bed with your cracker and drink and a hot water bottle to take the blood to your feet (except on hot nights) and a frothy, amusing book. Books of short stories are good bedtime reading, for too fascinating a novel may keep you awake until late. Sleep always comes unexpectedly.

Lucile M. F.—After adult years there is no way to cure bowlegs except through an operation, which would hardly be advisable for most people. You can wear your skirts long enough to cover the defect.

Abed.—The formula for the eyewash that you sent is very strong, and I should not use it unless directed to do so by a doctor. One teaspoonful of boracic acid to a pint of distilled, or boiled water, makes a soothing eye wash, so you may judge the strength of your mixture by this. Use an eyecup for douching the eye.

Mrs. J. R. B.—Go to a reliable dermatologist, or to one of the hospitals where they specialize on skin diseases, and I think that your daughter will be able to have the tattoo marks removed.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

WEAR ONE EAR-RING

PARIS, June 5.—A fantastic floral ear-ring is being worn at present by some young girls though ear-rings are not so much in vogue as heretofore. Only one ear-ring is used and it is in the form of a large basket of flowers.

FOR INACTIVE KIDNEYS

When the kidneys are in need of a good flushing take FOLEY PILLS, a diuretic stimulant for the kidneys. They promptly and effectively flush the kidneys, increase their activity and bring pleasant relief. Landon Taylor, Dorchester, Iowa, writes: "I can truthfully say that FOLEY PILLS are the best I ever used. I had lots of trouble with my kidneys and liver; I couldn't lift anything my back was so weak. Every morning I was dizzy, could hardly walk, but now I feel fine." BRAND STORY OF ANIMAL CRUELTY IN FILMS FALSE

Picture Producers File Flat Denial of Charges by Defense League

By GIL A. COWAN
For Southland News Service.
LOS ANGELES, June 5.—Cruelty to animals in motion pictures, as alleged by Mrs. Rosamond Wright and the American Animal Defense League in broadly circulated statements throughout the country, is definitely contradicted in a voluminous statement issued at the behest of the Association of Motion Picture Producers. The findings of the committee follow:

One—That there has not been any act of cruelty in the motion picture plants or in any of the pictures or in the training of wild animals for motion pictures.

Two—That the charges made by the American Animal Defense League and by Mrs. Wright regarding cruelty to animals in any specific motion pictures, and particularly "The Ten Commandments," "The Covered Wagon," "Sundown," "Ashes of Vengeance," and "The King of Wild Horses," and, in fact, all other charges regarding cruelty to animals in moving pictures and the making of them, including the buffalo picture taken by Thomas H. Ince's company in Canada, are absolutely untrue and false and without any foundation at all. That no picture or pictures which had been made by William S. Hart in which charges of cruelty have been made; and they find that no acts of cruelty were practiced upon the dog "Buck" in the making of any picture by the Hal Roach studio.

Lovers of Animals
Three—That in the motion picture industry are some of the greatest lovers of both wild and tame animals and loyal supporters of the work which is done for and on their behalf by the Los Angeles Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

The injustice of the criticism also is set forth by the committee which comprises a newspaper man, three humane officers and an actor of the picture industry not affiliated with any one studio. Such men as Cecil DeMille, James Cruze, Joseph Schenck, Hal Roach, William S. Hart, Thomas Ince and others were interviewed and they emphatically denied the charges. Hugh J. Baldwin, chief inspector of the state humane association of California, is quoted as follows with regard to the animals used in "The King of Wild Horses":

"In each case I discovered a most thoughtful and kind method of procedure and particularly was this demonstrated in the handling of the wild stallion Rex, who fully appreciates the kind voice of his trainer."

Kindness is Shown
"Again," continued the methods pursued in the conduct of the largest lion farm in America under the management of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gay. I saw them handle the lions up to the great cage and the lions were as tame as dogs. I saw them feed the powerful full-grown lions and in each case they demonstrated that the right system was kindness."

Charles Murphy at Universal studio made love to one of the female lions at their menagerie to the amazement of the committee and it "responded in true flapper fashion" by his caresses and seemed to enjoy his love-making as much as any flapper could," the report adds.

Kathleen Williams, wife of Charles F. Eytan, general manager of Famous Players-Lasky, gave instances where she had personally stopped the filming of pictures for fear of cruelty to the animals. Practically all of the picture people are pledged to prevent cruelty to animals and Bill Hart said it was necessary for him to build a high fence around his house to keep his horse from "walking" on him. He would "kill" him if he found abusing animals, the committee learned.

And that is the motion picture industry's viewpoint generally.

Four State Picnics Set for Long Beach

LONG BEACH, June 5.—Former residents of four eastern states that will total more than 100,000 persons will meet at Bixby Park during the next two weeks, according to Squire D. H. Head of the recreation department. On July 19 the Pennsylvania picnic is scheduled; on July 26 former residents of Illinois will be in Southern California; on August 2 the Nebraska picnic will be held; and on August 9 the Iowa gathering is scheduled to meet here.

Survey Being Made For Group Pilings

LONG BEACH, June 5.—Pillings will probably be used for the foundation of the plant of the Pacific Coast Steel company to be erected here in the near future, it was indicated today. Extensive surveys to seventy feet are being made of the tract by company engineers and depths of seventy feet are being explored to determine the structure. Group pilings, with twenty-five in a group, each pile capable of holding ten tons, is contemplated.

Matching sets of earrings, chains and bracelets in powder blue are a jewelry fad this season.

MISTAKEN IDEAS ABOUT MARRIAGE IN FILM WORLD

Matrimony in Hollywood Has Ardent Devotees Who Live Happily

By FORREST WHITE,
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 5.—It's all wrong about Hollywood and the movies and that the motion picture people can't make their married stuff stick. It's true that quite a number of the marriages among members of the colony and between members of the colony and outsiders have been floundering, due to poor casting, but that is a part of the game, as any casting director will tell you. But to say there are no happy tales is ridiculous.

It is wrong, too, to assume that motion picture folk enter lightly into the state of matrimony. They have proved their sincerity. Many wedded couples in Hollywood—of them have tried and tried, again and again, and will just keep on trying until the end. If that isn't proof that they are sincere, what would you?

Many Happy Couples
With so much sincerity, there could not help but be happy married couples in Hollywood and a periodical devoted to the interest of the pictures and the picture people completing a survey just a few days ago was able to announce the discovery of five couples in the motion picture colony who had been married—to each other—for at least three years. Both members of one sketch are picture actors; in another the wife acts in the pictures and the husband works on the practical end of the game; in the third the husband is an actor and the wife a sculptor; in the fourth the husband an actor and the wife a professional and in the fifth the husband an actor in the pictures and the wife a former actress on the stage.

Of course, there must be more than a few happy married couples in the motion picture colony of Hollywood but three years is a long time and—well, that was the result of the survey as set down in Brown and White.

Sensation Breaks
The ink on the publication was hardly dry before Hollywood was rocked by a tremendous sensation—a big type sensation smeared all over the front pages of the newspaper. An automobile—yes, it was a big, high-powered car—with a determined, white-faced man at the wheel, had raced through the main street of Hollywood at appalling speed while a beautiful, struggling woman, held captive by the speed of the car, had appealed loudly and vainly for aid. It was a thrilling episode, a great mystery, and the police were baffled.

Now the police of Hollywood have stood for a great deal of late, including this baffled stuff, and so they set to work to run down the great mystery. After a call at the home of John C. Howard, the son of a millionaire manufacturer of salad dressing, and his wife, who were married in motion picture star before their marriage a little over a year ago, they announced that the mystery had been solved.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard were out for a drive, the police reported, and Mr. Howard wanted to go one way and Mrs. Howard the other. Mr. Howard won the argument about which way they were to go, but Mrs. Howard had not admitted defeat when the racing car outdistanced pursuers. Newspaper reporters called at the Howard home to ask a few questions. "Why, I don't know what you are talking about," cooed Mrs. Howard. "There must have been some mistake. It could not have been us—we are the happiest married couple in Hollywood."

Scorns Weakening
Young Loeb has collapsed now. He is no longer a haughty young intellectual. He is just a weak, broken boy, pitifully apprehensive of the gawflies he pictures as awaiting him.

Leopold is the same brilliant, haughty, contemptuous, egomaniac youth. He says he recognizes that death at the end of a hangman's noose is his portion, and he is ready to face it. Indeed, to some observers it seems that this boy, having tried all the sentimentalities that life affords looks forward to death as a great new adventure.

His strongest emotion seems to be contempt for the "weakening" that Loeb, the broken confessor of their frightful crime, has turned out to be.

SCIENTISTS COIN NEW PHRASES TO EXPLAIN MURDER

Study of Wealthy Murderers Engrosses Savants in Character Probe

By OWEN L. SCOTT
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924.
CHICAGO, Ill., June 5.—The psychiatrists are in clover. Already they have begun coining new phrases and spinning tenuous theories to explain why two 19-year-old boys—pampered sons of millionaire fathers; savants in their teens; gifted in intellect far beyond their fellows—should have brutally murdered the 13-year-old son of another millionaire. The trial of the slayers when the $25,000,000 joint fortune of the three fathers involved had been brought into full play, promises a battle of alienists surpassing even the famous Harry K. Thaw struggles for freedom.

Was it mere lust for killing, bred in minds depraved through lack of moral restraint; was it sex perversion, a study which long had engrossed the young savants; or was it an unbalanced mentality that delights in the torture of humans, that led Nathan E. Leopold, Jr., and Richard E. Loeb, to slay young Robert Franks? To build up a theory for the crime that will save the two boys from the gallows, the psychiatrists of Albert H. Loeb, vice-president of Sears, Roebuck & Company, and those of Nathan E. Leopold, ship-owner and manufacturer, are being devoted. The millions of Jacob Franks, manufacturer, will go behind the demand of the law in Illinois, for an eye for an eye—the gallows for the confessed slayers of his son.

Theory Borne Out
Some of the mental specialists who have studied the case see in the bravado, the boastfulness of the slayers, evidence of the lust for torture and killing for its own sake. They find in the crime of the brilliant young killers, an exaggeration of the desire that have driven K. Thaw pleasure in the flagellation of girls and boys. The statement of the boys that they killed "for the fun of it" seeking a new thrill—bears out this theory.

Both boys had delved deeply into curious literature. Leopold, in particular, had devoted much time to the study of the perverse. He knew of the perverted monarchs of old, who delighted in the torture of human beings, gloating over their pain and ultimate death. He knew too of the modern day perverts, many a number, who derive pleasure from personally inflicted injury. Other specialists are inclined to the belief that young Franks was kidnapped as the intended victim of some form of perversion and that he was slain when he recognized his captors.

Crime of Precocity
Others, studying the intellectual history of the precocious pair, who were graduated from college with honors before they had reached the age at which most young men enter college; studying their flippant attitude toward morality, their disdain of religion, are building up a theory of a "crime of precocity." This is distinct from the ordinary crimes of degeneracy or perversion, for the latter are held by psychiatrists to be affairs of the emotions rather than of the intellect. "The aristocracy of Morality," is the phrase used by one well known specialist in an effort to classify the slayers. He finds in the case "a paradox of paradoxes," in its fine show of mental contradictions on the part of the youths, who "showed fiendish ingenuity, bland and cocky assurance, set against undoubted symptoms of sexual perversion, with a bright shell of sophistication in opposition to the subtlety of their minds."

None of the alienists pay much attention to the statement of the boys that the money they sought to extort from Robert Franks' father was a compelling motive. Both lads had all the money they needed. The answer, all agree, lies somewhere in the realm of pathology.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Now that the tumult and the shouting over the Indianapolis speedway auto race has died away, automotive engineers have gotten down to real business of analyzing the results which may appear in 1925 designs. Each car is being ripped apart and studied to determine what effect the 500-mile grind has had on engine and chassis. The designs of the cars in this year's classic race make it apparent that the trend of design is toward light cars of small piston displacement and high pressure cylinders.

Experiments already have progressed far toward development of pleasure cars of that type. It is known that tests are being made at the laboratories of the General Motors Corporation at Dayton under direction of C. F. Kettering, dealing with production of a new high speed high compression light car designed to run on a minimum amount of fuel.

There is little doubt that experiments along this line have been stimulated so far as General Motors is concerned by the fact that the corporation owns the patent right in the ethyl gas which, added to gasoline, is said to be especially adapted for use in a motor of the type indicated, since it is claimed it eliminates the "knock" caused by the premature explosion of the fuel charge in the cylinder under high heat or compression. Motors of the type indicated have been successfully driven on the road at comparatively low cost for fuel but the difficulty in some cases has been to secure the proper fuel and there assure such distribution of this fuel as would enable a motor owner to buy it as readily as he can now buy ordinary low test gasoline.

The trend seemingly is toward a lighter type of car according to automobile engineers. It is estimated that it costs somewhere in the neighborhood of $1 a pound to build and sell an automobile and that a reduction in cost of production and sales price is a matter of considerable extent is a matter of considerable importance.

Traffic congestion also is giving impetus to the development of light flexible machines readily responsive to traffic conditions. In the neighborhood of New York City the travel on the main highways frequently reaches a volume of 1500 vehicles an hour. It is estimated that 223,450 vehicles come into lower New York every ordinary business day. The congestion costs the city somewhere in the neighborhood of $500,000 a day. Conditions in other large centers are only slightly less acute.

It is a noteworthy fact in view of the present reduction in automobile production that companies representing 90 per cent of the industry are strong in cash and owe very little money to the banks. Few realize how well fortified they are to stand a protracted slowing down should that be necessary. An examination of the liabilities of the ten foremost producers shows that only three outstanding note issues are bonds. The total of these bonds is only one and a half per cent of the invested capital of the ten producers which aggregates $1,210,427,000. Even after putting aside the $431,000,000 of invested capital, the total bonded debt of the ten producers is only two per cent of the aggregate invested. The cash and liquid assets of the nine producers following next to Ford are sufficient to withstand a protracted depression in the industry. The total of these items is over $2,000,000,000 as against current liabilities of not quite $50,000,000.

Thus there is a cash cushion of more than $1,950,000,000 which the largest producers except Ford, have to fall back on. The cash sums which the Ford Company has on deposit in various banks is over $2,000,000,000 which, totaling $2,000,000,000 on March 1, are now hugging the $300,000,000 mark.

By Southland News Service

LOS ANGELES, June 5.—Oils continued the outstanding feature of the market on the Los Angeles stock and bond exchange this morning, with the Julian issues leading the list. Julian Petroleum preferred that advanced 2 points to a close of $30 yesterday, today advanced 1-4 higher at $30.25 and opened under buying power to $30.50. The common held steady at $19.

With a drop of an entire point during the morning session, nearly 20,000 shares of U. S. Royalties stock changed hands. The stock opened at 12 1/2, a decline from yesterday's close of .13, and dropped during the morning to 12. General Petroleum common was steady at $38.75. Central Oil, an inactive stock for several days, made a 5-point leap over yesterday's bid and opened this morning with fairly good sales at .75.

In the mining list United American was the only active stock in the morning. It opened at .05 1/2. Edison 7 per cent, among one utilities, was traded at $103.25. Southern Counties Gas preferred was firm at $97.50. Union Bank & Trust was the only active bank stock, opening at $168. Los Angeles Investment was fairly quiet at $3.76.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 5.—Georgia farmers who pioneered in the boll weevil belt in planting diversified crops, are reaping splendid results from these labors this week. Five counties which specialized in cucumbers have shipped twenty cars to Canadian markets and will increase the total shipments to over 1,000 cars within the next few weeks. The crop has returned growers $1,000 to $1,500 an acre. Millions of sweet potato and tomato plants are being shipped to western gardeners and every possible pod of pimento peppers produced in the mid-state counties has been contracted for at profitable prices by canners. Wage levels in the building trades here are steady, with supply of workers equal to demand.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 5.—Mining machinery companies here report that mining activities at present in California and Nevada are at a low ebb. In five years Sales of mining machinery of all kinds have shown an increase of over 30 per cent. Although shortage of water has curtailed California placer mining in some localities, development in Grass Valley and other sections has more than offset the loss. The demand for hoists and small units of crushing machinery is expected to be followed in the fall by purchases of large orders of mill and concentration plant equipment. The better prices obtaining recently for silver have aided revival of activity in the Nevada camps.

PHILADELPHIA, June 5.—A survey of business conditions in this section shows a decided increase in the list of industries where conditions are reported "poor" and prices lower. Of thirty-eight lines canvassed, ten declared demand poor, sixteen reported conditions poor to fair, or poor to good, and twelve denominated them fair. There is no scarcity of labor here, but wages have been unchanged in the majority of industries. The exceptions include a decrease to workers in floor covering factories and an increase to slate workers.

COMMODITY NOTES
By Special Correspondents of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924.

DETROIT, June 5.—The advance of $60 in the price of closed models of the Rickenbacker Motor company were not unexpected in motor circles here in view of the decline in output which has affected many of the leading producers.

FRUIT
SAN JOSE, Calif., June 5.—About two carloads of cherries are being shipped to eastern markets daily at present, and this output will continue until mid-June. Canneries will start operations this week.

ONIONS
LAREDO, Tex., June 5.—A total of 1,350 cars of Bermuda onions have been shipped from this district so far this year. The season is now about over.

BRICK
PHILADELPHIA, June 5.—The demolition of old houses blocking approaches to the new Delaware river bridge has thrown so much old brick on the market as to affect the demand for new products.

OIL
ST. PAUL, June 5.—Oil men here are watching closely the effect on other Northwestern markets of the cut in the price of gasoline here to 18 cents a gallon which now is in effect as a result of sales at reduced prices by cooperative associations in Minnesota and the St. Paul Automobile club.

LUMBER
NEW ORLEANS, June 5.—Production in the Southern Pine association mills last week jumped up 7.5 per cent, but neither new orders nor shipments kept pace. New orders advanced four-tenths of 1 per cent, while shipments fell off half of 1 per cent. Unfilled orders totaled 187,500,000 feet.

TEXTILES
BOSTON, June 5.—Textile plants continue to show varying influences throughout New England. The Nelson D. White & Sons mills have resumed full schedule operations after having been on part time and closed for a period. J. & P. Coats, thread manufacturers, curtailed their Providence plants from 48 to 44 hours a week.

WOOL
MERTZON, Tex., June 5.—Although wool at the recent sales here brought new high prices for the season of 50 cents a pound for 12 months' fleeces and 45 cents for eight months' clips bids were rejected on over 300,000 pounds and nearly an equal amount was not offered by holders.

SHOES
ST. LOUIS, June 5.—A statement today by the International Shoe company shows that sales for the first five months of this year were $44,388,886, a gain of $254,017 over the corresponding period for last year. The net income for the period was $4,892,000.

INVESTMENTS
By GEORGE T. HUGHES
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924.

CONSCIENTIOUS BROTHER-IN-LAW.
She was selling $8,000 in gilt-edged bonds, and a pained junior partner in a bond house was writing a check for her. Then he positively refused the woman out, wished her luck in her new venture, and beckoned me in.

"There goes $10,000 to the buzzards," the junior partner sighed. "Couldn't stop her. She sold $8,000 in bonds and with $2,000 additional in cash she is going to buy $10,000 worth of stock in some sort of an alleged new-fangled building and loan scheme somewhere up-state. She put $2,000 into it a year ago. That paid her 14 per cent for her $2,000 for a year and then returned the $2,000. That hooked her."

"It was useless to explain that it is virtually impossible for an investment to earn that much with safety. If there was any reasonable assurance that 14 per cent could be had, that gang wouldn't have to go off Main Street to get the money, much less come away down here and do all that explaining—and that good woman certainly demands a lot of explanation. I've shown her repeatedly the dividend yields and interest returns of scores of good securities in dependable, honest concerns, to prove that money has a very definite earning power."

"But it was no use. She's following the advice of that brother-in-law, a very conscientious and honorable man, who knows nothing of investing, although he does manage to make a living running a little dry goods store. He's a frequent type that sometimes make me wish that I had never gone into the bond business. During the war he had his believing that the government would eventually default its Liberty bonds. We had a hard time making her hold her Liberties."

"We work and worry to set up good bonds and then along comes some shady proposition, aided by a conscientious friend or relative, who knows nothing about investments; sound securities are turned down for fake stuff. That woman's husband left her a small cottage when he died eight years ago. The $10,000 she's going to throw away represents her savings of eight years—she has a job—and interest on bonds we've sold her. Away it all goes."

That incident happened about two years ago. The brother-in-law, a very capable fellow, the widow's back about $1,700 of the $10,000 she put into the get-rich-quick enterprise. Several scores of others who couldn't afford to lose suffered also. It was a very legal failure. No one went to jail for it. But somebody got the money.

When any investor climbs the 5 to 8 per cent fence that borders the plain, smooth road of safe investments, and goes into a briar patch after 14 per cent, he's going to get pretty well torn up. Every man's and every woman's investments should first of all always seek safety. The huge returns simply do not return.

DRY GOODS
SEATTLE, June 5.—Trade in women's wear, hats and suits is better than fair, and mail order houses are preparing for a heavy run of orders when the harvest money commences to trickle back to the agricultural districts.

LIVE STOCK
CHICAGO, June 5.—Fewer marketable hogs are now on farms than a year ago with a smaller crop of young pigs to draw from. Through the central states the farm labor situation is fairly satisfactory, with wages holding firm.

STEEL
CLEVELAND, June 5.—Improvement in demand for sheets is evident at northern Ohio steel plants. The head of one leading company reported today more orders were booked last week than in three weeks previous.

PIONEER CITIZEN INJURED BY FALL

Mrs. M. Woodruff, Tujunga, Suffers Broken Arm;
Attractive Home

TUJUNGA, June 5.—Mrs. Mary Woodruff, 124 West El Centro street, one of the pioneer residents of Tujunga, had the misfortune to fall and break an arm while crossing a vacant lot. While the break is painful, it has been set and is reported on the mend. Mr. and Mrs. Ensign Woodruff located in Tujunga in the days when the townsite was first laid out and when it was called Little Lands. They were one of the vanguard who believed that an acre of ground would yield a comfortable living for a family if properly cultivated. The results attained by them have proved that the belief was well founded. The Woodruff place on El Centro is one of the attractive home places of Tujunga. In addition to a large flock of chickens which supply the market with eggs, several varieties of fruit, berries, vegetables and nuts are grown. Fruit trees include the apple, pear, plum, peach, nectarine, apricot, quince, fig, loquats, plumquat, grapefruit, lemon, orange and avocado. There are over a dozen olive trees.

Grow Many Berries
English walnuts, almonds and peanuts have also been raised on the place. Blackberries and raspberries are among the berries that have been successfully grown. One fruit tree bears several varieties of plums, the work of budding having been done by Mr. Woodruff. Excellent asparagus has been grown also, as well as sweet potatoes.

There are several varieties of grape, among them being Thompson seedless, Sultan seedless, Dattier, Rosapera, Muscat, Malaga, Tokay, Mission, Concord, Niagara and Black Muscat. In addition to these nearly all the green feed for the chickens is grown on the place.

VALLEY BUSINESS MEN IN THANKS

Letter of Appreciation Is Sent Supervisors for Street Improvement

SUNLAND, June 5.—A letter of appreciation for the recent street improvement work done in the Valley Center vicinity was drafted at the last meeting of the Valley Center Improvement association and sent to the city supervisors. The lighting committee was instructed to make a survey of the unlighted streets and report.

This meeting was the occasion of the celebration of birthdays of members who were born in May. The birthday affairs are a feature of the meetings of the improvement association, one meeting each month being given to this purpose, when the members who have birthdays that month are the guests at a social gathering. Messrs. Butts and Foster and Mesdames Thompson and Smith were the guests at this meeting. Refreshments were served following the short business session of the association.

SEWER BID CALLS FOR CEMENT PIPE

Unless Majority Petition Is Filed Asking for Clay Type, Will Stand

EAGLE ROCK, June 5.—Information has been received from Robert Dominguez, Los Angeles city clerk, that the sewer report recently submitted to the city council has been referred back to the board of public works with instruction to award the contract to the lowest bidder. The bid is for cement pipe, unless a 51 per cent petition is filed for clay pipe.

Under the state law of California on assessment jobs such as the Eagle Rock sewer work will be, it is not legal to call for bids on competitive types of materials for the construction contract. Therefore, competition between materials must be secured prior to the enactment of the proceedings for the work. In order to secure the benefit of competition in sewer pipe to the property owners in the various districts in Los Angeles, the council several years ago adopted the procedure of having the engineering department call for bids from the sewer pipe companies for the furnishing of the required amount of sewer pipe for a given contract, this bid being accompanied by a bond guaranteeing the price; then the proceedings have specified in the ordinance of intention that class of pipe which can be purchased at the lowest price.

Comply With Regulations
This procedure has been complied with in connection with the Eagle Rock sewers, the bid of the clay pipe interests being $26,512.87, as per the engineer's official tabulation. This makes the concrete pipe bid $3,091.13 low. The normal procedure would be to have concrete specified in the proceedings as the result of the above bids, outlining the action of the council on May 19. If 51 per cent of the property owners that are to pay for the improvement, petition for the higher price material they are entitled to it.

New Lumber Yard Is Open in La Crescenta

LA CRESCENTA, June 5.—A lumber yard, operating under the firm name of W. R. Letton, Inc., has been opened at Montrose and Pennsylvania avenues.

Mr. Letton formerly was connected with the Wm. J. Bettengen company, and has had fifteen years' experience in the lumber business. He has been a resident of the valley for several years, and believes the Verdugo hills offer excellent opportunities in his line of business. Lumber and all kinds of building material and hardware will be handled by the yard. A planing mill will also be operated in connection.

Popular Couple Are At Home in Tujunga

TUJUNGA, June 5.—Dr. J. J. Jelinek and Mrs. Jelinek, nee Miss Edith Magnusson, who were married May 15 at the home of the Rev. Mr. Lash in Hollywood, are at home at 432 Pine street. Dr. Jelinek is house physician at the Tujunga Sanitarium and Rest Home on Michigan avenue and has acquired a large practice in the Verdugo hills since opening offices here.

SECOND BENEFIT DANCE TO RAISE HOSPITAL FUNDS

Pearl Keller's Pupils Will Aid Crippled Children
By Performance

Dancing and philanthropy are both very near the heart of Pearl Keller, well-known Glendale dancing and dramatic art teacher, who is attracting wide attention all over the southland by the brilliant program she is to present Saturday afternoon and night in the Philharmonic auditorium, Los Angeles, as a benefit for the Crippled Children's Guild of the Orthopedic hospital.

Miss Keller's art and success as a dancing teacher reaches much farther than developing the aesthetic talents of her many pupils. It develops in each one the spirit of true service, so dominant in the enthusiasm with which 200 of her pupils are anticipating the program this week for the little crippled kiddies over at the Orthopedic hospital.

This worthwhile spirit is contagious, and Miss Keller is most gracious in telling of the hearty support she is receiving on every hand.

Second Benefit
This is the second annual benefit the Keller studio has given for the Orthopedic hospital, and predictions are that great success will mark each performance.

Cunning kiddies from 2 years old up through the teens are to entertain, clever dances, colorful costumes, artistic songs, catchy music and entertaining dramatic numbers will all combine in the brilliant program.

When the first curtain rises a truly fairyland atmosphere will be created, for, on a huge valentine, twenty elflike figures of baby dancers, ranging in age from 2 years and 7 months to 4 years, will smile happy greetings and trip down to present "The Cupids' Dance."

This valentine idea originated with Miss Keller and, with the help of Mrs. L. W. Chobe, the valentine was designed and built by Mr. Donaldson. Lumber for construction was donated by the Bentley Lumber company of Glendale. The valentine stands twenty feet high, and is to be with all the gorgeous features of a real valentine.

Butterfly Dance
Other group numbers to follow will be a "Skirt Dance" by a group of beginning pupils; "Russian Dance" by a group of boys, "Irish Jig," "Gypsy Tambourine Dance," "Dance of the Fireflies," "Egyptian Ballet," and an old-fashioned number, the "Flirtation Dance."

Outstanding in this group will be the "Dance of the Butterflies" by a group of toe dancers. Their costumes are wonderfully fashioned. Over 7,000 sequins are used on the bodice of each costume and thousands of sequins on the wings. The wings are of metallic cloth made from separate pieces of colored cloth. Mrs. Charles Fischer of Burbank has given many hours helping in making these costumes.

A specialty number is being given through the courtesy of the Sun Kist Orange company. This company has provided a huge orange, from which "Baby Peggy" of moving picture fame will step for a little dance. Assisting her will be eight of Miss Keller's girls in costumes, typifying the orange. The costumes have been furnished by the Sun Kist company.

A group of advanced girls will give a "Grecian Dance." In addition to these group numbers there will be solo and duet numbers, presenting some of the popular favorites from the Keller studio.

Special Numbers
Beautiful Cecilia Mae Fischer is to give two toe dances, and also "The Dance of the Hunt"; the Hunt sisters will appear in wonderful white satin fur-trimmed costumes for a "Skating Dance"; the clever Turner sisters will give "Gypsy Rondo" and "Pierrot and Pierrette"; Marie Louise Brown, who has delighted many Glendale audiences with her talented work, will give an eccentric number, "Dog Dance," and later "A Summer Episode," done in a lovely pink costume.

The little prince and princess of fairyland will be Douglas Cowan and Betty Jane Stewart, two tiny artists, who are to do an old-fashioned minuet.

Julia Pelly, another favorite, is to give two dances, "Oriental" and "Scarlet Dance"; Eleanor Marek will display her talent in doing a difficult buck and wing number; Elizabeth Hoffman will give a song and dance, "Dancing Dan," appearing as a young dandy in a perfectly-tailored black satin dress suit.

Later Eleanor Marek and Elizabeth Hoffman are to give an eccentric number, "Raggy Andy and Raggy Andy."

Other numbers will be "Car-

New Bank Shares Are Offered to Founders

TUJUNGA, June 5.—Stockholders of the Tujunga Valley bank have been notified that they may purchase new shares of the increased capital stock which was recently authorized by the authorities. The offer is open until June 19.

Par value of the stock is $100. Shares of the first issue have sold for $140. The increase of the bank's capital stock was voted in March and recently approved by the banking officials. The new capitalization is $100,000.

Dance Stately Minuet

The little prince and princess, who will appear in a stately old-fashioned minuet Saturday afternoon and night at the Philharmonic Auditorium in Los Angeles, where pupils of the Pearl Keller School of Dancing and Dramatic Art will present a benefit program for the Crippled Children's Guild of the Orthopedic Hospital. Douglas Cowan, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Cowan of 510 North Jackson street, is seen on the left, while by him stands his graceful little partner, Betty Jane Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Stewart of 346 West Doran street.

CENTRAL AVENUE FUTURE DEBATED

Residents Discuss Development of Street and Lay Improvement Plans

BURBANK, June 5.—At a meeting of Central avenue people last night in the office at Sommer square it was decided to bring this section to the front. An outline was made of the work which it is planned to accomplish in the future, and this program includes streets, a definite curb line, the boulevard to business, co-operation with the forces working to complete Victory boulevard and Riverside drive, and several other projects, which will be taken up in due course.

City After Industries
Manager J. W. Charleville of the Chamber of Commerce has just received the first number of "The Nation's Business," the official organ of the United States Chamber of Commerce, in which appears Burbank's advertising matter. The ad shows up in good shape, he believes, occupying a third of a column and is addressed particularly to industries looking for a location.

"That this advertising will come before the very men which it is desired to reach, Mr. Charleville feels, is indicated in the fact that the publication has a circulation of 153,000, of which 126,833 are officers of industrial concerns, 37,671 being presidents of their concern.

The Burbank advertising campaign in this magazine will continue for nine months, and the officers of the chamber are looking for good results from it.

Mrs. Church, Mrs. Atwood and Mr. and Mrs. Cady have just returned from a trip to San Francisco and sojourn in the Yosemite valley.

Dinal Bird Dance, by Gertrude Muske; "Mirror Dance," by Geraldine Keeler; "Jazz Dance" by Roberta Hope Simpson.

Give Rose Dance
Another bit of the magic of fairyland will delight when, from the heart of a huge pink rose, Adrienne McDade will appear to give "The Cecil Brunner Rose Dance."

Nellie Aleshire is to give a "Chinese Dance"; Robert Lehman, a pupil of Miss Keller, who is now doing professional work, will give a specialty number; Glen Hitchcock, who delighted last year with her "Scarecrow Dance," will be seen Saturday in the "Bowery Number."

Musical readings will be given by Katherine Jane Bruner, Albert Swall, Marjorie Turner and Vivian Malone.

Miss Keller has been most ably assisted by A. R. Shepherd of 457 West Burchett street, in arranging the music for the program. Mr. Shepherd is a professional musician of wide experience, and on Saturday he will direct a two-piece orchestra.

She also expresses appreciation to Ralph W. Browne of North Brand boulevard for the splendid photographic work done preliminary to the affair Saturday.

Prominent women of southern California are to serve as patronesses for the affair. Among them are Mesdames Hancock Banning, Benjamin F. Bledsoe, William Gibbs McAdoo, Antonio Moreno, Wallace Reid, O. M. Souden, Evelyn G. Trippett, F. G. Calkins, E. T. B. Ross, R. D. Shepherd, A. M. Marsh, Charles Lowman J. W. Johnson.

CLUBWOMEN TO ELECT OFFICERS

Many Expect Mrs. Jones to Be Chosen President
Again This Year

TUJUNGA, June 5.—Election of officers for the Tujunga Woman's club will be held Thursday, June 12. It is fully expected and freely predicted by many of the members that Mrs. Nelson E. Jones will be re-elected to the presidency. Mrs. Jones, with the support of the members, has accomplished some very excellent results for the club during her term the past year, notable among them being the start of the clubhouse, which is expected to be finished by the end of this month.

In the past the club has been renting quarters, and in order to meet the expenses the members have held cooked food sales. These sales have been so successful that a large sum has been added to the building fund. The club has decided to borrow money necessary to complete their new clubhouse, and in order to eliminate the necessity of holding food sales during the summer months to meet the payments the members are undertaking a campaign to raise the necessary amount in pennies.

Yards of Pennies
Strips of paper, each a yard in length, are to be filled with pennies, the total length of the combined strips being one-quarter of a mile. The sum represented by this quarter of a mile of coppers will meet all expenses of the club during the summer months and relieve the members of the work of raising funds each month.

Any one sufficiently curious to know the amount needed for this purpose, who has the necessary ambition, is at liberty to figure out how much one-quarter of a mile of pennies represents. The woman's club gives full and free consent.

Install Pipe Organ In Tujunga Theatre

TUJUNGA, June 5.—Patrons of the Tujunga Valley theatre are enjoying a new pipe organ that has been in the course of installation for some time. Mrs. Johnston has been engaged to play the instrument.

The organ has 256 pipes and the tuning process was quite an undertaking. Operating mechanism is located under the stage. It is one of the most complete of its kind in the southland, and has come to considerable expense and work in having it installed for the patrons.

GRUNION RUN IS DUE TONIGHT AT SPOTS ON BEACH

Expect Thousands Will Try to Grab Elusive Fish Along Shores

Glendale parties that were disappointed at the time of the predicted grunion run between May 20 and 23 will have another opportunity of trying their luck at catching the elusive little smelt tonight and tomorrow night, when another run is due to take place at high tide.

Hundreds of motor parties visited the beaches at the time of the last run and got nothing for their efforts except colds and wet clothing. The grunion evidently failed to receive word of what was expected of them and did not keep the appointment with the watchers along the shore. For three nights the persistent ones returned to the shore in hopes that the "silver horde" would appear with the full moon, as is their custom, but even the luckiest were able to get only a small pail full of the elusive fish.

Those who have studied the grunion say that it is a deep water fish that rises to the surface at certain times of the year to spawn on the sand of the Southern California beaches. Pursued by the larger fish, they swarm into the shore in great schools and are washed up on the beach in large numbers, where the females deposit their eggs, and are washed back again.

Catch with Hands
The sport of grunion fishing is in attempting to catch the slippery little silvery shadows as they flounder on the beach for a few seconds before being washed back into the ocean again. The sportsmanlike way to do this is to wade into the backwash of the receding wave and grab at the tiny fish with your hands as it rests for a moment on the sands or as it slips back into the sea.

Many people use long nets and screens, which are placed against the sand as the incoming wave rolls up the beach to its farthest point, and in the backwash the grunion are swept into the net without a chance of escaping. This practice, if continued, would soon exterminate the fish and California would lose one of its historic attractions, "the grunion run."

Beautiful Sight
A sufficient number to satisfy any party can be obtained with only the bare hands as implements, however, and the sport is much more thrilling. The sight of thousands of fish rolling in on the crest of each succeeding wave is a sight to be long remembered and many make the trip to the beach simply for the purpose of seeing the run. Wienie bakes and picnic lunches are the popular methods of passing the time away until the run begins at high tide.

The Automobile club reports that the grunion are due to run tonight and tomorrow night at Santa Monica, Seal Beach, Balboa and Newport. Those planning on taking the trip should time their departure so as to arrive at the beach just before the moon rises, unless they desire to spend an evening around the campfire, as do hundreds of others on the night of the runs.

WANTED: GOOD FEELING
SANTA ANA, June 5.—Jealousy existing between pupils of the Julia C. Lathrop and Frances E. Willard high schools has reached a point that it appears necessary for the Parent-Teacher association to take a hand. As a result a day of "frolic" will be held Saturday to promote good feeling, it is said.

COUNTIES TO 'WED'
SEAL BEACH, June 5.—Tonight is the night of nights. A grunion festival will be held on the beach. The "wedding" of Orange and Los Angeles counties in the persons of Miss Seal Beach and Miss Long Beach will take place on the sands with appropriate ceremonies.

DIED LONG TIME AGO
LONG BEACH, June 5.—Dr. John A. Comstock, curator of the Southwest Museum, today identified the remains of a man found on the Long Beach Country club property as one of the members of the Gabriel Inyo Indian tribe who died four centuries ago. All told five bodies have been dug up in what appears to be an aborigine burying ground.
